BUSINESS PROSPECTS.

Secretary Gage Speaks of the Decline of Silver Sentiment.

THE WHITE METAL LOSING GROUND

He Also Speaks of the Commercial Interests of the County, and Basing His Remarks on Interviews is Confident.

INCIDENTLY SPEAKS OF TARIFF

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 6.—Referring to his opportunity for feeling the business pulse of the country in his recent meeting with the business and commercial men of four great cities at Cincinnati, Secretary Gage Saturday said:

"The commercial clubs which met at Cincinnati are composed of representative commercial and manufacturing men from four great cities of the country, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati. They are the heads of the greatest commercial and manufacturing houses of these great cities. Each one of them is in touch with his representatives in all parts of the country, and thus obtain information concerning business conditions all over the Unied States.

"I was gratified to find," continued Mr Gage, "a very satisfactory feeling among those gentlemen who thus formed their opinions by their contract with its business and commercial men in all parts of the country. They reported a better business condition and better feeling than has been realized for a long time. By this mean not an extreme growth of activity but a marked improvement, and one which is accomplished by confidence on their part that it is the beginning of a prominent improvement. We have, of course, seen in the past spurts of business improvement which were only temporary, but the feeling among these gentlemen was that the improvement which they observed is likely to be permanent and to continue with such legislation as well as tariff."

"Do you think that the free silver sentiment is as strong as it was three months ago?"

"Of course the people with whom I came in contact represent the cities only, so that I could not judge so accurately from what they personally know; but it is quite apparent, not only from what I learn through them, but from other sources, that the silver sentiment is on the decline. Events of the past few months have been decidedly adverse to it, and must have had a depressing influence upon its advocates and upon the theory itself. Japan, for instance, to which they called particular attention during the campaign as a shining example of free silver prosperity, has adopted a gold standard; so have Peru and Russia, and the tendency among other silver using countries seems to be in that direction. All these things, coupled with the continuous fall in the price of silver, is not only showing people the unwisdom of the proposition which these leaders so strenuously advocated, but are showing to these leaders themselves the improbability of inducing the American people to again support such a proposition."

Sailed Her Paint Off.

New York, June 5.—Two weeks ago Lieutenant Fremont, in command of the torpedo boat Porter and other officers of the boat, in the clear water off Newport, observed that the vessels bottom was becoming bare of paint. Arriving here she was put in dock and the fact was developed that the coating of paint applied less than a month ago, had been entirely swept away by the rapid speed of the boat through the water, and that the protective coat upon the steel hull had also nearly vanished. This is the first instance recorded in which the bottom of any sea going vessel had been bereft of this paint coverings by the friction of the water, caused by high rate speed. The Porter has been repainted, with protective coverings on her hull.

Too Sudden.

"Now said the editor, "we can't use any more matter. Don't you take a scrap of news unless——,,

"Yes," answered the managing editor.

"Unless it is the news of a scrap. That is to say——"

However, it was to late to insist upon his good intentions, as the humorist editor had already fainted.

The Laying of the Corner Stone.

The laying of the corner stone for the new Disciple church at Howard was conducted on Wednesday last, June 2nd, in the presence of a large audience. Rev. C. S. Long offered the opening prayer and also laid the corner stone. Rev. C. W. Harvey, of Plymouth, delivered the principal address; subject, "The Origin and History of the Disciple Church." Other interesting addresses were made by Revs. E. E. Manley and M. S. Blair.

In a receptacle in the corner stone were placed the following articles: DAILY NEWS, BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, Democratic Watchman, Centre Magnet, Gazette, Centre Democrat, Christian Standard, of Cincinnati; Christian Era, of St. Louis; Christian Worker, of Lock Haven; a copy of the Scriptures, Tract entitled "Opposition," a list of officers of the church and building committee, and three coins bearing date of 1897.

The frame work of the building is now being put up and the work is being pushed so that the dedication can take place in September. K. D. Batcheler, of Lock Haven, has been awarded the contract to furnish the plaining mill work, and the brick will be furnished by the Mill Hall Brick works.

The name inscribed on the corner stone is "Christian Chapel." The auditorium is calculated to seat 250 people. The seats gradually descend toward the pulpit, and are to be straight back, with circular effect. The dressing room and baptistry will be back of the pulpit, and are 7 by 8 and 4 by 2½ feet.

Rev. E. E. Manley, who resides on Walnut street, Howard, is the pastor of the church.

Deadly Duel With Axes.

LITTLE ROCK, June 5.—A double tragedy was enacted in the woods four miles from Cabot, a small town in Pulaski county, Thursday evening. C. G. Barrentine and John Brown fought to a finish with axes, and the fight lasted until both men had received their death wounds. The men had a difficulty over a settlement.

Thursday afternoon Barrentine went to the woods where Brown was at work and an altercation ensued. Barrentine struck Brown with a maul, knocking him down. He then seized an ax and began chopping his antagonist, cutting his legs and body in a fearful manner. Brown wrenched the weapon from Barrentine and literally disemboweled his assailant. In this terrible condition Barrentine walked a quarter of a mile to his home, where he died in great agony. He related the story of the battle, and when an investigation was made Brown was found where he had been struck down. He cannot possibly recover.

IS HE GUILTY?

Cornelly Asks for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

HEARING FIXED FOR JUNE 17

How the Town Has Been Terrorized by Incendiary Fires—Some of the Losses of Recent Years—Some Insurance Companies Withdrew Their Business.

THE SPIDER AND THE FLY

Counsel for James Cornelly, who has been committed to jail on the charge of being the author of the recent incendiary fires in this borough, applied for a writ of habeas corpus, Monday which was granted and a hearing fixed for June 17. Cornelly is charged in the information with having set fire to the court house on February 7 last with having burned the Bellefonte electric light plant on April 8, and with having attempted to destroy by the same means the armory, which is one of the institutions the town is proud of, on May 21.

This simple statement, however, tells but little of the recent history of incendiarism in this town and conveys no idea of the importance which is attached to the arrest and the movement of which it is a part to make property once more safe in Bellefonte. For 10 years the town has been terrorized by fear of fire. So many acts of incendiarism have occurred that the owners of property have been in constant fear, and when seeking protection have found it difficult to secure adequate insurance. Within 10 years there have been many fires and attempts at incendiarism besides those immediately involved in the case in hand. Among them was the big Garman stable fire, which, before it was checked, burned up over half a block, including nine stables part of the Garman hotel, the Lutheran church, several dwelling houses and a number of horses and cows, involving a loss of from $75,000 to $80,000.

In May, 1887, the Humes block of stores and offices was destroyed, including the First National bank, a total loss of about $60,000. During the same period the old Conrad house, a landmark of the town, standing on the site of the present Temple Court building, was burned. Added to these was the Arcade block, involving $60,000 loss, and within two years an attempt was made to destroy the Reynolds block. Besides these there have been many smaller fires and attempts to burn public and private buildings.

All of this resulted not only in terrorizing the public, as has been stated, but had the effect of causing some of the more prominent insurance companies to decline taking risks in the town, while those who continued to do so increased their rates since the risks were regarded as extra hazardous. This state of affairs, followed by an attempt upon the very temple of justice, firmly convinced the public that the time had come when the perpetrators of these crimes should be run down, and it was then that the county commissioners, in obedience to this sentiment, employed the Perkins detective agency, of Pittsburg, which in co-operation with the district attorney and some of the leading citizens, undertook the task which resulted in the recent arrest of Cornelly and a man named Steward, and which, on the supposition that they are the right persons, has eased the public mind and demonstrated to evil doers that they are being vigorously and earnestly pursued.

Representatives of the detective firm are still on the ground perfecting the chain of evidence which they claim will show that they have the right parties, and the disclosure of the nature of the testimony which they will present at the hearing to substantiate the action they have taken is anxiously looked forward to.

A curious circumstance in connection with the case was that Cornelly was arrested in the very headquarters of the detectives. He kept haunting them continually, and on the very afternoon of his arrest, while one of them was in consultation with the district attorney about the contemplated arrest, unheard by them. Cornelly entered the room and called their attention to his presence by saying. "Will you walk into my parlor, said the spider to the fly." They were rather nonplussed, thinking that he had overheard some of their conversation. That very evening he walked into their parlor again and they caught him in their web. Just before he was arrested he complained to them that the constant suspicion under which he was, and the public accusations that were made against him were worrying him into a decline, and that in consequence he wished he were dead. After the arrest he seemed to brace up.—Pittsburg Times.

WEDDED AT HIGH NOON.

Marriage of Louis C. Wetzel and Miss Ida E. Gerberich.

The residence of Mr. C. T. Gerberich, on Thomas street, was the scene of a beautiful and impressive ceremony at noon Wednesday, when Mr. Louis C. Wetzel was united in marriage with Miss Ida E. Gerberich. It was a very quiet affair, only the immediate members of the family and a few intimate friends being present.

The interior of the house looked very pretty and inviting. The parlor was tastefully adorned with roses, smilax, ferns, orange blossoms and carnations.

Promptly at the time appointed they took their places before Rev. Frank Wetzel, of Stoyestown, Pa., a brother of the groom, who performed the ceremony which united them for life. Miss Sallie E. Tyson, of Philipsburg, very ably presided at the organ and rendered the beautiful wedding march. The bride was dressed in a very becoming traveling costume and carried in her hand a bouquet of bride's roses. The groom was dressed in conventional black.

The solemn ceremony ended, the wedding party adjourned to the dining room, which was also decorated with smilax and roses, where a choice repast was served.

The bride was the recipient of many useful as well as beautiful gifts from her many friends and acquaintances.

The wedded couple left, amid a shower of congratulations and rice, on the 2:15 train, by way of Lewisburg, for Philadelphia, New York and other eastern cities.

The groom is a rising young business man of our town, of sterling worth and character. His bride is a daughter of Councilman C. T. Gerberich, and is a young lady of many accomplishments, with a host of friends, who wish them a long life of happiness as fair and bright as the beginning.

An interesting song service was held at 10:30 a.m. in the pavillion. At 1:30 p. m. the exercises were opened with music by the congregation, followed by prayer by Rev, C. T. Aikens, of Pine Grove Mills. Addresses were made by Revs. R. W. Runyan, A. P. Warton, C. T. Aikens and R. Illingsworth. Choice refreshments of ice cream, cake, hot coffee and sandwiches were served during the day in the interest of the Fillmore Epworth League, and they were said to have realized a very neat sum. The committee in charge were A. Boyd Cowher, C. R. Norris, G. C. Blair and P. B. Kephart. Frequent trains were run during the day and everything passed of smoothly and to the credit of the railroad company.

The Contracts Drawn and Signed Monday Night—Bicycle Ordinance Was Shelved—Councilman Shortlidge Sets Down on the High Constable.

OTHER BUSINESS OF IMPORTANCE

The regular meeting of the Bellefonte Council was held Monday evening, beginning at 7:30, with the following members present: President Hillibish; Messrs. Gerberich, Valentine, Shortlidge, Shaffer, Keller, Garrity and Brachbill.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Clerk Isaac Mitchell and there being no corrections they stood approved.

Mr. George Bush requested that water pipes be laid on Potter street as far as Mrs. Gross' residence.

A petition was read protesting against the building of any more steps on Lamb street, as it was in a shady part of the town, which made it dangerous; it also interfered with ladies getting along safely with baby carriages. This petition was called forth by the fact that Gov. Hastings is building a walk along his property with steps at every 25 feet.

Mr. W. E. Gray spoke in favor of granting the privilege, already extended by a majority of the Street committee, to the Governor to lay a pavement along that street with steps at every 25 feet. If a pavement was laid according to grade no one could walk on it, especially in icy weather. It would be very steep. The walk he desires to lay is much more expensive if laid in steps than if laid according to grade.

The Street committee had nothing to report in the absence of the chairman.

Chairman Gerberich, of the Water committee, reported repairs to water pipes in various parts of town. Several of the new fire plugs have been placed in position. It is desired that water be placed in the house owned by Warren Burnside, on Logan street.

Chairman Brachbill, of the Street committee, came in and a report was requested of him. Repaired boardwalk on Water street, built several crossings on Curtin street, gave grade to John Kurtz for a stable on Burrow street, opened up gutter in alley back of West Linn street. Complaint has been made of the pavement in front of Mrs. Fasic's property, on Reynolds avenue. Gave grade on Lamb and Allegheny streets for pavement of Gov. Hastings. Complaint has been made by residents on Thomas street that the grade given them was too low.

Chairman Shortlidge, of the Nuisance committee, read a report, in which he plainly showed by the reading of the ordinance, that it was the duty of the Street Commissioner, and not the High Constable, to bury dead dogs and cats. It only cost 20 cents for the Street Commissioner to bury a dog, whereas the High Constable charged $1.00.

Mr. Keller, chairman of the Finance committee, read the agreement which they had drawn up with Mr. Crider for the erection of a public building. Mr. Valentine offered a resolution in favor of adopting this agreement and that the President and Secretary of Council be ordered to sign the same and attach thereto the official seal. This was seconded by Mr. Garrity and unanimously adopted by the Council. This assures us a new public building, and work will commence on it at once.

The Market committee reported that Clerk Thos. Shaughensy had collected $5.40.

The next business called up was the Bicycle ordinance. Among other things, it provides that they shall not ride at a faster rate than four miles an hour on the pavement. It was read by the clerk and was discussed by different members of Council. Mr. Brachbill was in favor of stopping the bicycle riders from riding on the pavement at any time. After much discussion it was put to a vote, which resulted in a tie: Ayes—Shortlidge, Valentine, Gerberich and Keller. Nays—Brachbill, Shaffer, Garrity and Hillibish. This settled the Bicycle ordinance.

In regard to laying a water pipe on South Potter street the Water committee recommended that the pipe be laid. It was so ordered.

In regard to the Hastings pavement and the remonstrance against it. Mr. Brachbill spoke for the property owners in that vicinity who were opposed to allowing a pavement to be built with steps. He said it was no interest to him, but he spoke for those people. Mr. Keller moved that permission be granted him to lay a pavement there with steps every 25 feet and 12 inch tread. It was carried by a vote of 5 to 2.

It was ordered that a crossing be laid on West Linn street from John P. Harris' to Lingle's.

The request for water on Logan street was referred to Water committee to investigate.

The Street committee was ordered to see that the proper pavement be laid in front of Mrs. Fasic's, on Thomas street.

The following bills were approved and orders drawn:

Hoosiers Given a Dose.

Probably one of the smoothest swindles ever operated by patent medicine fakirs in this country has recently come to light. This game was played on the good people of Marshall county, Indiana. Several people afflicted with incurable diseases have been visited by a doctor representing himself as being from Columbus, O. who treated his patients under contract to cure or no pay. The contract used by the doctor is one of the finest legal documents ever constructed. In the contract the patient agrees to take medicine as directed or the money which has been deposited in bank is forfeited, The medicine is compounded in such manner that the patient is unable to take it. At the expiration of thirty days the doctor calls and finding the medicine not taken as agreed, the money is forfeited. Five wealthy farmers in one vicinity have been defrauded out of about $5,000.

Oil Works Shut Down.

CLEVELAND, O., June 7.—At noon to-day the entire plant of the Standard Oil works in this city shut down for an indefinite period. The foreman told the men that there would be no work for weeks. The men believe that during that time another section of the plant will be abandoned, carrying out the Standards policy of making this city only enough oil and other products to supply the home demand. Close to 1,000 men are thrown out of work by the shut down.

Broke Jail at Lewisburg.

Harry Rupert and George Eisenhower, of Williamsport, together with Sherman Ettinger, of Union county, broke jail at Lewisburg Saturday night by picking the locks on their cell doors and prying the iron bars from an outside window. The men were in jail for robbery. Sheriff Gross has offered a reward of $100 for their recapture.

A PRIVATE SOLDIER.

BY JOHN R. MUSICK.

A dreary plain, a vast waste, with only a green oasis like grove of trees, in which had hastily been thrown up a rude breastwork of sand and stone.

A cloud of howling savages surrounding the earthwork, in which was the great overland stage. It was a scene calculated to excite fear and sympathy. There were women in that beleaguered fort as well as men, and their pale faces, parched lips and dry, tearess eyes evinced the stony terror caused by the prospect of certain death.

A dozen troopers under command of Lieutenant Marks had been sent to guard the stagecoach; when they found themselves confronted by such overwhelming odds that they hastened to the grove we have mentioned and hastily threw up the earthworks behind which the soldiers and passengers were defending themselves. The face of Lieutenant Marks was almost as pale as marble, and he had long since ceased to give orders, for it was now a pitched battle in which every man was his own commander.

Prominent among the troopers was a tall young man in the uniform of a private soldier. There was a look of calm determination on his face, and whatever others may have done, he wasted no shots that day. Every time his rifle cracked a redskin fell. Though he exposed himself more to Indian bullets than any of the others, he seemed to hold a charmed life, for not a shot touched him.

This private was about twenty-four years of age, with a handsome face, dark eyes and black moustache. His name was George Stone, and it was whispered that he was a graduate of Princeton. How he came to be a private soldier in the regular army is a story of sufficient interest to tell even in the midst of battle, especially as it has some bearing on the conflict. He and Lieutenant David Marks had been schoolboys together, and both were competitors for the appointment at West Point. Marks, though inferior to Stone in every respect, having the strongest political pull, succeeded, and George went to Princeton.

George graduated about the same time that his successful rival came from West Point with a commission as second lieutenant of cavalry. He happened to be near the town in which the regiment of his rival was quartered. This renewed the jealousy of his companion. Then Miss Mary Sommers came to the city. She was going to her sister in Montana, the coming summer, and as Marks' regiment had been ordered to that part of the country, he hoped he would meet her again, especially as he had fallen desperately in love with her. For the second time his rival was his schoolboy friend, George Stone, who seemed to be more successful than he had before. Marks had no political pull in love matters, and began to look about for some means to conquer again.

The plan he fell upon was the most nefarious that can be conceived. One day he and some officers and friends enticed George into a saloon, and during the afternoon induced him to drink so much champagne that he became utterly unconscious of his acts and surroundings.

While he was in that state, a recruiting officer who was present induced him to enlist in the regular army as a private, and he was assigned to the company to which Lieutenant Marks belonged.

When Stone recovered consciousness and realized what he had done, he resolved never to drink another drop of intoxicating liquors.

Marks, who had been his constant associate, of course cut his acquaintance, and George was compelled to mess and associate with the common soldier. Stone gave strict attention to orders, and studied military tactics as he had never studied any subject in his life. He became the favorite of all save his second lieutenant, who lost no opportunity to humiliate him.

In due time the regiment was ordered to the plains, and he was with the squad sent to guard the stage. It was the first time Lieutenant Marks had ever been under fire; nevertheless it was natural to suppose he would show some courage on this occasion, for Mary Sommers, the girl who had won his heart, was in the stage.

It was galling to poor George Stone to meet the woman whom he loved under such changed circumstances that he dared not speak to her. He bore himself erect with a proud soldierly dignity, but was silent. When the attack came he was first in the fight, and it was then that the lieutenant, who shone as a society man, began to show the white feather. He failed to go to the front with his men, and kept as much out of range of bullets and arrows as possible.

It was George, his stony silence broken only by the exigency of the moment, who suggested the grove as the proper place to make the stand. It was he who proposed that the breastwork be thrown up from the stones and sand.

All the while the cowardly lieutenant, with pale lips and trembling form, was crouched under the stagecoach, not uttering a word or taking any part in the conflict.

"Lieutenant Marks," said a sweet, musical voice at his side during a lull in the conflict, "why do you not go to the front with your men?"

"I am ill, Miss Sommers; indeed, I am very ill. I can hardly stand upon my feet," answered the lieutenant. And to prove that he was correct, he lay at full length on the ground.

"You were not ill two hours ago."

"No, this has been very sudden and very unfortunate indeed. If I were well I could drive off those rascally Indians; but really I am not able to hold up my head." And it seemed as if he would burrow his head in the sand.

"Lieutenant Marks, you are a coward'" cried the brave girl, indignantly. "You are a disgrace to the service."

He began to lament in a pitiable manner, and she turned away and ran to the side of George Stone, who stood boldly erect by the imperfect breastwork, firing at the savages, who were pouring a storm of bullets about him. Laying one little hand on his shoulder, she said:

"Mr. Stone, it is not right that you should endanger your life."

He turned his pale, stern face upon her, and spoke to her for the first time since he had worn the uniform of a soldier.

"Miss Sommers, this is no place for you."

"Nor is it any place for you," she answered.

"I am a soldier, and it is my duty to die."

"And I am one whom you are defending, and it is my duty to remain at your side."

"Miss Sommers—" he began.

"No, no, George! I will never leave this breastwork while you expose your life—more precious than that of any other in the party."

He was touched by her words. They appealed to his heart. A moisture came into the eyes which had been so long dry, while his frame trembled.

"Miss Sommers—"

"George, you used to call me Mary; won't you do so now? Remember, death is a great leveler, and we are facing death."

"Mary—I must defend you," he said. "I would defend you even if I were not a soldier, and I must inspire these others by my example."

"Better let any of them expose their lives than you!" she answered in a voice of melting tenderness.

"It would be fatal to shirk duty now—the act of a coward. Is it not better that we take the only chance we have of defending our lives than to die a coward's death?"

"Then let me stand by your side and fall when you do. I shall not care to live if you are gone."

"No, no! Don't insist on endangering your life, Mary. You unman me. I am a coward when you are exposed to danger—I am brave in the thought that I can defend you."

His reason and entreaty prevailed, and she was induced to seek the most sheltered place in the enclosure when the Indians made their next charge on the rude earthwork.

"They are coming again, boys!" cried the brave private. "Now remember that it is better to die a brave man than a coward. Don't waste a shot. Our only hope lies in making a bold, stubborn resistance."

The soldiers, who looked upon him as their natural leader, silently nodded assent.

"Steady all!" cried George Stone. "Now take careful aim. Don't any of you waste lead on the big chief with red feathers."

Every rifle was aimed.

"Steady! Let them come a little nearer before you fire."

Up they came until they were even within long pistol range, and then George gave the command:

"Fire!"

There was a rattling crash of firearms, and the foremost saddles were emptied. The big chief with red feathers went down with the others. The riderless horses plunged back among the mounted savages, making the panic more general.

"Load!" cried the young soldier.

Before the Indians had recovered from the confusion the volley had thrown them into, a second volley was poured into them. Then some of the passengers having Winchesters began a continual fire.

The savages drew off again, but they had no intention of giving up the fight. Other chiefs came to take the place of those fallen, and they appealed to their comrades for revenge. They had only to point to the sandy plain, reddened with their blood, and with deafening yells they charged the breastwork.

One by one the soldiers went down. As if by a miracle Stone was still unhurt, and gathering the arms of his fallen comrades about him, he continued to fire with such rapidity that the Indians little dreamed there was but one man left.

"George, let me help you," entreated Mary. "I can load the guns."

"God help you!" he murmered.

At this moment there was a sudden and for some time unexplainable stampede on the part of the enemy. Hastily taking up their wounded and part of their dead they flew across the plain as rapidly as their ponies could carry them. The cause of their flight was the arrival of two hundred soldiers under Major Warner. George was the only man unhurt save the cowardly lieutenant, who was still under the stagecoach, and who never recovered from his sudden malady until he and the major assured him the enemy was gone.

Miss Mary Sommers went to the city, where her brother, a wealthy miner, lived. Tom Sommers was not only wealthy but influential, and he was soon ready to offer George Stone either a discharge or a commission. He chose to be discharged, and shortly after married the lady whom he had so gallantly defended. He removed to a Western State, from which he was sent to Congress, and subsequently became an official in the war department.

In another engagement Marks had proved to be a coward, and was tried by a court-martial and dismissed from the service. He went to Washington to be reinstated, and while at the war department met the man whom he had injured.

THE GRAND ARMY

There Was Quite a Demonstration in Johnstown Yesterday.

A CAMP FIRE LAST NIGHT

The Flood City Did Itself Proud and Made a Most Handsome Display—Darte and Clarkson Made [illegible] Speeches.

WHO THE NEW OFFICERS WILL BE

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 3.—There were thousands of people in the city this morning when the thirty-first encampment, department of Pennsylvania, Grand Army of the Republic, commenced. There was not a single hitch to mar the arrangements that were so successfully carried out in the parade of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Johnstown fire department, unless it might be the failure of Commander-in-Chief Clarkson to arrive in time to view the spectacle.

The start of the long line of men and the vehicles was delayed perhaps a half hour awaiting the arrival of the commander in chief, and when the procession moved it was considerably after 10 o'clock. An escort of policemen cleared the way along the line of march with little difficulty, and the thousands of spectators formed one of the most orderly crowds that ever witnessed a parade in Johnstown.

Following the parade there was a meeting at the Johnstown opera house, when the following officers were elected: Department commander, Captain W. D. Stauffer, of Lancaster; senior vice commander, Captain W. Kellar, of Johnstown; junior vice commander, Samuel Scott, of Pittsburg; chaplain, the Rev. John W. Sayers, of Philadelphia; re-elected for the twenty-sixth time; medical director, W. R. D. Blackwood, M. D., of Philadelphia. The national delegates and other officers will be selected to-morrow morning.

The present department commander, Alfred Darte, submitted his annual address, in the course of which he says:

"In conformity with an act of the legislature of Pennsylvania, I certified to the governor, Jan. 15, 1897, the following honorably discharged soldiers: Thomas G. Sample, of Post No. 128; Ezra H. Ripple, of Post No. 139; James F. Morrison, of Post No. 1; Levi G. McCaulley, of Post No 31; George W. Skinner, of Post No. 365, for appointment as members of the soldiers' orphans' schools commission, as provided by the act referred to. I had a personal interview with the governor, during which he refused to confirm the appointment of two of the comrades—James F. Morrison and Thomas G. Sample—whom I had named, and declined to give his reasons for his refusal. "From the date given to the present moment no word has reached me from the governor, and I am, therefore, unable to say why he refused the confirmation of my appointments, but I do not believe that the governor of Pennsylvania has the right, even though he has the power, without giving the reason, to say that any honorably discharged soldier is unfit to look after the little children of his helpless or dead comrades.

"He told Comrade Sample when refusing to confirm his appointment that he had no personal objection to him."

To-night there was a camp fire, when Commander-in Chief Clarkson and Department Commander Darte made stirring addresses. The encampment will be continued to-morrow, when committee reports will be heard.

A Sudden Death.

The news of a sudden death came to this place Thursday, when a telegram was received announcing that Charles Chambers had died at Columbia. It was very sudden and unexpected. Death was caused by painters colic.

He was the youngest son of Mrs. Mary A. Chambers, of this place, and a brother of E. R. Chambers Esq. Being a painter by trade he had just moved to Columbia, where he had secured employment on the painting of the new rail-road bridge over the river there. He had been ill for a few days and the physicians told him he would have to give up painting as it would seriously impair his health, but no such speedy ending was anticipated.

Charley was 29 years old and is survived by his wife, who will be remembered as Elsie Hastings, of this place.

The remains were brought here Thursday night, and taken to his brother's, home on East Linn street, where a brief service was held Saturday morning, at 8 o'clock, preparatory to taking the body to Half moon for burial in Gray's ground, where his father, the late Elijah Chambers, lies.

Sunbury's Bicycle Ordinance.

Sunbury's council has adopted an ordinance regulating the speed of bicycles on the streets and requiring them to be provided with a bell and at night a light. The ordinance was run through at lightening speed and as passed, limits the speed of bicyclers to seven miles per hour and not more than two persons may legally ride side by side. Penalty for violating is from five to fifteen dollars.

POLICE NEWS.

Two Arrests Thursday Which May Prove Important.

Thursday was a red letter day in the police annals of our town, two arrests were made by the police which may have some bearing on the recent fires and robberies committed in this town.

William Hanna was arrested by the authorities in Williamsport as a suspicious character. Word was telegraphed to this place and officer Mullen was sent down Thursday to look him over. He indentified him at once and brought him to Bellefonte on suspicion of being implicated in the robbery of Charles McClellands tailor shop. Ae was taken before Squire Keichline, but waived a hearing and was bound over to court to await trial. The evidence against him is said to be very stronge, as he was seen going down the railroad track past the Nail Works, with a bundle of clothes under his arm the night of the robbery.

ARREST OF CORNELIUS.

For several weeks past detectives have been at work in this place trying to ferret out the mystery of the recent fires. Their efforts culminated last night about 8 o'clock in the arrest of James Cornelius, on suspicion of setting fire to the Court House, Electric Light Works and Armory. Just what evidence they have against him we could not learn. He was taken before Squire Keichline who committed him to jail for trial. Cornelius had very little to say, but seemed to blame his arrest on Frank Steward, the man who was arrested as a suspicious character a few days ago. It is now believed that Steward is a detective and that the authorities were working a bluff when they arrested him

Robbery at Cedar Springs.

The general store of Furst Brothers at Cedar Springs, in Nittany Valley, was entered by burglars last night, and a number of articles of value and some money stolen.

The burglars gained an entrance by cutting through a door at the rear of the warehouse, and afterwards breaking down the door leading from the wareroom to the store.

The discovery that a robbery had been committed was not made until this morning when it was found that a lot of shoes, a number of knives, razors and other cutlery had been taken, together with all the money that had been left in the money drawers when the store was closed last night.

The safe had not been touched by the burglars. The supposition is that the store was entered sometime after midnight as at that time Mr. L. C. Furst, whose residence adjoins the store, heard a noise but supposed it was made by a colt in the barn.

The money drawers contained a small amount of cash, every cent of which was taken. The most valuable haul made by the thieves was razors and pocket knives. There is no clue to the robbers. It was reported this morning that three suspicious looking men were seen yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of Mackeyville.

Risked Drowning to Save Her Child.

A thrilling accident occurred at Spring Mills, last Sunday, when the daring of Mrs. G. H. Long, the wife of a leading merchant of that place, saved her five year old son from drowning.

The child fell into Penns creek and was struggling to keep his head out of water when his mother missed him and, fearing the worst, rushed to the stream. First she saw his hat floating on the surface, then the boy weakly struggling in the last throes. Fearing nothing and thinking only of her child she plunged into the water, which was as deep as her chin, and reached him. Then the excitement reacted and she was unable to get out again, but Harry Allison, an employee of the mill, was attracted to the spot and dragged mother and child from the water.

Another Fish Story.

Punxsutawney Spirit.

A man who resides on the east side relates an incident which may be true, but it sounds fishy. His boy caught a large sucker a few years ago and since that time has been experimenting with his finny pet somewhat. The fish had been kept out of the water so much that it gradually became accustomed to it, and frequently flopped out of the water itself. Finally the boy placed it in a pen and gradually reduced its bathing periods until it became acclimatized, abandoning entirely its native element. It would follow the boy around like a dog and one day he started over town across the swinging bridge with the pet fish flopping along after him. But, alas for boyish hopes! The fish made a slight miscue and flopped overboard into the creek and drowned before the boy could rescue him.

An Imposter Detected.

The chief burgess of Montgomery, on Saturday, found a woman soliciting alms by means of a subscription book. She gave her name as Kriner and said she had just buried her husband. Inquiries were made and it developed that she was Mrs. Jacob Keiser, of Milton. She was made to return all the money she had collected.

TAKEN OUT AND LYNCHED

A Tragedy Which Occurred in an Ohio Town Yesterday.

NEGRO RAVISHER TAKEN FROM JAIL

He Had Been Sentenced to Twenty Years After Having Plead Guilty to the Crime of Which He Was Charged.

MILITIA KILLED TWO CITIZENS

URBANA, O., June 4.—"Click" Mitchell, the negro who assaulted Mrs. Gaumer recently, was last night, in the court at Urbana, O., sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary. The exciting incidents of the last two days had an unfortunate and deplorable culmination at 2.30 o'clock this morning. The disorganized mob of 1,500 stood on the streets all night, yelling and perfectly willing to lynch a brute guilty of a fiendish crime.

The mob had been slowly advancing all night nearer and nearer to the jail. The guards were crowded closer to the building as the night advanced. Finally a dozen men or more got onto some steps leading to the back entrance to the jail. A fellow with a big sledge hammer which he had been carrying all night under his coat, blazed away at the door, knocking it in. At that instant the guards, who were stationed inside the building, opened fire and at least twenty shots were poured promiscuously into the crowd.

The man who carried the sledge hammer escaped without injury, but a man named Higgins, or Hagans, dropped dead, shot through the body. The crowd scattered instantly.

During the few seconds in which the firing took place some deplorable work was done. Harry Bell, son of Smith Bell, of this city, and the man Higgins, whose identity cannot be established, died almost instantly. Ten others were wounded.

Most of those injured were standing in the street and most were spectators. The crowd was several times ordered to leave the jail yard by the sheriff and Captain Leonard, of the guard.

The grand jury was impanelled yesterday and Mitchell was indicted for criminal assault. Then the crowd was thrown off the trail by bringing Mitchell into court in soldier's uniform. Mitchell was scared, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to the limit of twenty years. The trial lasted only a few minutes, then Mitchell wanted to get to the penitentiary at Columbus quick, but when the carriage drove up to the jail to get him the crowd rushed in and tried to get the prisoner. Another crowd surrounded the depot.

The sheriff remained fortified in jail with his prisoner while the militia patrolled about the ground. The crowds would not disperse and at 2.30 a. m. they broke through the lines of soldiers and were about entering the jail when the soldiers opened fire.

Hon. Daniel H. Gaumer, publisher of the Zanesville Signal, and Hon. Charles M. Gaumer, formerly publisher of the Mansfield Shield, are brothers-in-law of the victim. They are here with Mrs. Gaumer, who is still in a critical condition.

The Springfield troops arrived at 7.30 a. m., and immediately marched toward the court house. Angry citizens, who were incensed over the killing of townsmen by the militia at 2.30. a. m., were only furthur irritated by the appearance of more troops. Crowds gathered along the streets and greeted the soldiers with hootings and all sorts of insulting remarks.

Next mud balls began to be thrown at the soldiers. The fever of excitement raged more and more fiercely. Women appeared on the streets in large numbers, and their presence seemed to be an incentive to the mob to avenge in some manner the outrage to Mrs. Gaumer. The excitement was growing so fast that another clash between troops and citizens seemed inevitable. In this emergency, Mayor Ganson took the responsibility of ordering the Springfield company to return to the depot. The order was obeyed.

No sooner did the crowd receive this apparent retreat by the soldiers than their fierce demand for the blood of Mitchell grew stronger. An immediate attack was made successfully upon the jail. Mitchell was, in a moment, in the hands of the mob, and the next minute he was hanging from the nearest tree.

Hundreds of women were present and witnessed the final scene of the mob's fury.

Took His Own Life.

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—Rev. Adam Boley, a German Lutheran minister, 55 years old, who resided with his wife and seven children at the house of his brother-in-law, 2155 East Dauphin street, shot himself in the head at the Swiss hotel, 463 North Third street, this morning and died from the effects of his injury at the Hahnemann hospital without regaining consciousness.

He left home on Monday morning and paid fifty cents for a room at the hotel that evening. He left there the next day and did not return until Wednesday evening when he registered as H. Miller, of Pittsburg. He seemed to be greatly excited while talking to the night clerk and anxiously inquired if there was gas in the room he was to occupy for the night. He was recognized as a former minister He was dressed in the garb of a minister and had previously attracted considerable attention.

The dead man was formerly a resident of Williamsport, Pa., where he had charge of a German Lutheran church. For some reason, however, he gave up the pastorate in November last, and came to this city, with his brother-in-law on East Dauphin street.

No cause can be assigned for his rash act, but it is supposed that he worried a great deal because he could not secure the pastorate of a church in this city.

Demanded the Negroe's Death.

URBANA, Ohio, June 3.—"Chick" Mitchell, a colored man, who assaulted Mrs. T. M. Gaumer a few days ago, was brought before that lady to-day for identification. She exclaimed: "Hang the brute. How dare he face me." Her nervous prostration was so great that she could not repeat her identification in the mayor's office.

When he was taken from the court to jail a great crowd followed. No violence was attempted, but there were threats of lynching. But for the lack of a leader there would have been an attempt at lynching in daylight. Sheriff McGin and Captain Leonard, of Company D, Ohio National Guards, were requested to leave the town by persons in the crowd. At a late hour at night the crowds dispersed, but the Sheriff and Captain Leonard are keeping a sharp lookout for trouble.

Buried $50,000 and Forgot it.

ELDORA, Ia., June 3.—James Webster, a Hardin county agriculturist, was in business in 1893 and lost largely by failure. Lest the rest of his fortune be also wiped out he sold everything he possessed but a small farm for $50,000 and buried the proceeds of his sale in small caches about the place. His memory has totally failed him of late, and notwithstanding his effort to locate his hiding places he can find none of them. His mental condition makes it impossible for him to care for himself, and being without relatives, he must go to the county poor house.

Made an Address.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 2.—The naval war college was formally opened this morning with an address by Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy. The address was delivered in the lecture room of the college which was filled with the Members of the class and guests.

Commander C. F. Goodrich, president of the war college, presided and introduced Mr. Roosevelt, who spoke upon Washington's forgotten maxim, namely: "To be prepared for war is the most effectual means to promote peace."

Aunt Rachael's Bitters.

The undeniable fact that these bitters are composed in the main of Speer's Wine, with Peruvian Bark Snake Root, etc., analyzed and recommended to invalids and the Medical Profession by the best chemists in the United States, cannot fail in inspiring confidence in the use of these Malarial Bitters.

—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Miller, of Valentine's works, died Thursday morning. Interment took place Friday afternoon in Quaker cemetery.

—Mr. Wm. Harrison Brouse, of Pine Grove Mills, and Miss Emma V Williams, of Boalsburg, were married by Rev. R. Leighton Gerhart, D. D., at the Reformed parsonage, in this place, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

—Several days ago a young man by the name of W. J. Stine shot and killed a large English mastiff dog that was owned by Miles Mattern of Half Moon. The dog had repeatedly run out at Stine as he was riding to and from his work at Scotia, on a bicycle, and several times threw him clear off. He warned Mr. Mattern of what he intended doing if the dog was not kept inside the fence, but the warning went unheeded and he made good his word. On Wednesday suit for damages was brought and will likely go to court. Mattern had the dog for breeding purposes and valued it at $50.

FOR THE REYNOLD'S PRIZE

Interesting Contest By the Class of '98, Bellefonte High School.

H. ALBERT BLAIR TAKES FIRST PRIZE

And J. Earle Aikens Wins the Second—All Contestants Acquit Themselves Nobly—J. C. Meyer, John Blanchard and Boyd Musser Act as Judges.

EXERCISES AT THE STONE BUILDING

The annual contest for the Reynolds prize, to be given to the member of the High School delivering the best declamation, was held in Garman's Opera House Wednesday evening. It was a complete success in every particular. The cosy play house was crowded to the doors and quite a neat sum was raised in this way for the library fund.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the exercises began. The stage was adorned with potted plants and palms, and the National colors intermingled with the orange and black, the colors of the Class of '98, were draped above.

On the stage, besides the contestants, were Prof A. R. Rutt and Rev. W. A. Stephens. After an earnest and eloquent prayer by the latter, the following program was rendered, each contestant being introduced by Prof. Rutt:

Music.
Invocation.
Music.
Recitation—"The Painter of Seville," S. Elizabeth Faxon.
Declamation—"The Black Horse and His Rider," Wm. J. Dorworth.
Recitation—"The Swan Song," Ida E. Fauble.
Declamation—"The Unknown Speaker," J. Earl Aikens.
Music.
Recitation—"Absalom," Henrietta Wright.
Declamation—"The Chariot Race," R. V. Lyon.
Recitation—"Nydia, the Blind Girl of Pompeii," Dasie Keichline.
Music.
Declamation—"The Gladiator," Samuel McClure.
Recitation—"Searching for the Slain," Mary E. Runkle.
Declamation—"Death-bed of Benedict Arnold," H. Albert Blair.
Music.
Announcement of judges decision.
Music.

As each one stepped to the front to deliver his or her selection it became very apparent that to decide which was the best would be a very hard matter. They had all been carefully trained and acquitted themselves in fine style. There was not a single break made by any of them and each contestant handled his or her subject with grace and ease. The exercises lasted nearly two hours, but so interesting were they that no one minded the flight of time.

The judges were J. C. Meyer, John Blanchard and Boyd Musser, who retired to an ante-room to make a decision. The contest was so even that it took them quite a little while to decide, but they finally returned with their decision. Mr. Meyer was spokesman and in a few words he told how hard it had been to come to a decision, as they were all so good. After carefully going over the points they had to decide, Mr. Meyer said, they had awarded the first prize to H. Albert Blair, and the second prize to J. Earl Aikens. These announcements were greeted with applause.

All who took part in this contest are to be congratulated on the excellent showing they made, and it is to be regretted that they could not all receive a prize.

Captured by the Marblehead.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 1.—Dispatches from Miami, on the lower east coast, report the seizure of the steamer Biscayne, charged with fillibustering, by a deputy collector of customs. The Dauntless, which left Savannah two weeks ago, ostensibly on a towing trip, and which has since reported to have landed two cargoes in Cuba, is also reported to have been captured by the cruiser Marblehead, which put out from Key West.

The capture occurred off Palm Beach, and the steamer will be taken to Key West and placed in custody. The Biscayne is said to have transferred a cargo of arms and ammunition to the Dauntless, a cargo having been sent down the Florida East Coast railway to Fort Lauderdale on Saturday. Nothing was found on the Biscayne.

Mark Twain Is All Right.

LONDON, June 1.—The friends of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) ask the Associated Press to deny the stories in circulation regarding his ill health and impoverished condition. For several months Mr. Clemens and his family have been living in a pretty house situated on a charming square at Chelsea. His book is now finished and the publisher is on his way here from the United States for the manuscript. Mr. Clemens and his family leave London at the end of this month to pass the summer in Austria.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

The large saw mill of Weaver, Johnson & Co., at Hyner, was destroyed by fire Monday night. The watchman was under the mill, when suddenly he discovered that flames were issuing from the entire upper portion. How the flames originated is not known. The flames communicated to the stable and to the large piles of lumber, all of which were burned. The yard was piled full of sawed lumber and all of it was consumed. All the buildings except the house were burned, together with the wagons.

The mill had a capacity of 40,000 feet a day. When running full handed from eighteen to twenty men were given employment. A few days ago the mill had ceased sawing pine to start on a job of shingles. There was no insurance and the loss on buildings and lumber is placed at about $50,000.

Respite for Durrant.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The attorneys for Theodore Durrant again appeared before Judge Gilbert, in the Unite States Circuit Court to-day, applied for a writ of supersedeas for the purpose of staying the execution of sentence, but this was denied by the court. An application for leave to appeal from this decision to the Supreme Court of the United States was then granted. Although it is an open question whether, in view of the denial of the writ of supersedeas, the order of the court acts as a stay of proceedings Attorney Genera Fitzgerald told Warden Hale to take no action in the premises pending the appeal.

As the United States Supreme Court does not meet again until October next, this virtually means a respite for six months at least.

This Burglar Was Desperate.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 1.—A desperate burglar gained entrance to the house of E. S. Leisch, of this city, early this morning, and after subduing the inmates at the point of a revolver, helped himself to money and other articles amounting to several hundred dollars. He was first discovered by a servant girl, before whom he thrust the pistol, and bound her hand and foot and threw her across the bed. Reuben Leisch, a son of Mr. Leisch, heard the schuffle and went to the girl's assistance. He was knocked senseless by a blow from the pistol and was also bound and thrown alongside the girl. His father next appeared and received the same treatment. The thief then secured his booty and escaped.

Ensign Stone on Trial.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Ensign George L. P. Stone, of the U. S. S. Puritan, is on trial before a court-martial at the Brooklyn Navy Yard on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. The charges grew out of Stone's love affair with Miss Marie Conde, of Oswego and this city. Stone went to Oswego recently to see her, but was prevented from so doing by the girl's parents.

Mr. Conde then complained of Stone's conduct to the Secretary of the Navy with the result that charges were preferred against him. Mr. Conde says Stone went to Oswego to elope with the girl.

The Golden Star Gold Mining Co.,

OF MONTANA.

Owning 3 great and rich gold mines offers a small portion of its shares to the investing public at a very low price. The capitalization is very small. Several thousands of dollars have already been expended and over 600 feet of underground work is done on the property, which is rich in gold, copper and some silver. These shares now obtainable at a very low price are the best investment on the financial market to-day and ought to pay at least 10c per share per month dividends in the near future. For reports and prospectus sample of the ore, etc., please address

Scrofula

Face Broke Out With Sores—Weak and Sickly Until Hood's Sarsaparilla Made Him Well.

"My little son was afflicted with scrofula sores and he was weak and sickly. Our physician recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla and I bought a bottle. . . . He had taken all of this bottle his face began to break out with sores and one side of his face was nearly all one solid sore. I continued giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla until he had taken two bottles. The sores were then healed and he has been well and hearty ever since." Z. W. SMITH, Big Shanty, Pennsylvania.

"Everything I ate seemed to produce gas in my stomach. I was growing worse and friends advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken four bottles I was able to eat and feel no distress. I could attend to my household duties without the fatigue I formerly felt." ADA MCVICKAR, White Hall, Pa.

Steamer Hekla Sighted.

LONDON, June 4.—The Danish steamer Hekla, Capt. Laub, from New York May 22, for Copenhagen, &c., passed the Butt of Lewis, the most northern point of the largest of the Hebrides, to-day, with her bows badly stove. She signaled that her passengers weae all well.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Hekla left this port on May 22, with 400 passengers and a general cargo, and was in collision with the Mississippi westward-bound, five days later. General Passenger Agent Johnson said to-day that the injury inflicted on the Mississippi was so trifling that the Board of Marine Underwriters, after investigation, ordered that with the replacing of three broken plates, seven feet wide, the Mississippi could start for London next Sunday on her regular eastbound trip.

The Hamilton Good Roads bill passed the senate finally with the provision that $500,000 shall be appropriated to the project of good roads by the state whenever it is available. The provisions of the bill are not as definite as they ought to be, but they seem to be the best that are practicable now. The house should concur in the measures amended. It is not all that could be desired, but it is a step in the right direction.

THE NEW GAME LAW.

Some Important Changes the Hunters Should Learn.

The new game law, just signed by Governor Hastings, deals with the protection of song and insectivorous birds, and provides that persons who desire to collect birds, and their nests for strictly scientific purposes shall obtain a certificate from the Board of Game Commissioners at a cost of $5.

The money derived from these permits, heretofore issued by prothonotaries at a cost of $1 per year, will be devoted to the use of the Game Commission. From this source a revenue of perhaps from $200 to $300 annually will be obtained.

The law has been so framed that the Game Commission cannot give a permit which will enable any person to collect game birds, or their nests or eggs out of season.

The law prohibits the sale of game of all kinds killed in the State, and likewise the removal of game from the State. If men kill game illegally they will be sent to jail if their fines are not paid, a day for every dollar imposed.

A man found with a ferret in his possession when hunting rabbits will be liable to a severe fine.

Under the new law woodcock can be taken in the month of July and from October 15 to December 15 inclusive. The seasons, so far as they relate to wild ducks, reed birds, snipe, plover, doves and wild pigeons, are the same as under the old laws.

Pheasants, squirrels, quail and wild turkeys can be legally taken from October 15 to December 15. Mongolian or English pheasants, which have been introduced in a few of the localities with a view of naturalization, cannot be killed for a period of five years.

A limitation has been placed on the number of birds, etc., which a gunner may kill in a day. It is as follows: Woodcock and pheasants, 10; quail, 15; wild turkeys, 2. And no person is allowed to kill more than two deer in any one season.

Wounded on a Freight Train.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., June 4.—H. M. Duffer, of Montpelier, an insurance agent and a professional wrestler, was shot while passing through this place last night as a passenger on the Passumpsic way freight train, and it is feared he will die from his injuries. The bullet passed through the car window and curtain, and entering Duffer's right cheek, shattered the upper jaw, split the tongue and upper lip, and just grazed the neck of Conductor Seeley, who was passing.

Dr. J. S. Allen who fired the bullet, claims that the shooting was purely accidental, that he was shooting at a target at the time, and that a bullet missed the mark and passed through the car window.

BOSTON, June 4.—Dr. Samuel J. Allen, who is under arrest at White River Junction, charged with shooting H. M. Duffer, of Montpelier, was found guilty of killing Dell Hansel in a saloon on Howard street, in this city, and on February 4, 1895, was sentenced to serve a term of five years in the State prison, at Charlestown. The deed was committed during the previous May. It resulted from a quarrel over charge laid upon the counter by the barkeeper. The defence at the time of the trial was that the killing of Hansel was the result of an accidental discharge of a pistol in Allen's hands, but the jury found a verdict against Allen.

West Point Cannon Destroyed.

New York, June 4.—United States commissioner Shields held in $2,500 bail for examination Timothy Maxey, a teamster at Highland Falls, and Henry S. Savage, a Western Union lineman, stationed at the same place, for complicity in the theft of four cannon stolen from Fort Clinton, West Point.

Maxey and Savage were arrested upon information given by Thomas M. Early, one of the men taken into custody several days ago for alleged complicity in the heft of cannon from West Point. Commissioner Shields fixed their bail at $4,000 each. Their examination will take place on Tuesday next, at which time Early and Bernstein will also be examined.

It is alleged that Savage was the leader in the plot. Maxey removed the cannon in a wagon to Cranston's dock, Highland Falls, and Early attended to the sale to Max Bernstein. Ten of the guns were blown up with dynamite in the woods near Highland Falls, and the fragments brought here to Bernstein's place, in Hester street. The other two guns were boxed and shipped whole to Bernstein, and subsequently sold by him to Kahn Brothers, who in turn sold the material to a dealer in metal, named Heppenheimer, at Frankfort, Germany.

The guns were relics of the Mexican war. There is no charge against Kahn Brothers, as they had been dealing with Bernstein for years and had no idea that the metal came from cannon at West Point.

The proper way to build health is to make the blood rich and pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the one true blood purifier.

Boiler Explosion in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, June 7.—A boiler exploded to-day in the print works of Noriega Brothers, in Puebla, causing the death of twenty or more persons, the number not being positively known, as it has been impossible to remove the debris caused by the explosion. A part of the boiler was carried high in the air and precipitated on the roof of a house in the neighborhood, killing an old man and three children. An iron beam from the works was hurled through the roof of another house, carrying away a portion of the front and balcony and literally burying it.

A fireman three blocks from the scene of the explosion had his head completely torn off. Troops surrounded the depot, and laborers are searching for the bodies.

DEMOCRATS IN CONVENTION.

Still Enthusiastic for Free Silver and William J. Bryan.

The Democrats of Centre County have met and placed their ticket in the field for the ensuing campaign. They held their primaries last Saturday throughout the county and on Tuesday at noon met in convention in the Court House.

County chairman Hugh S. Taylor called the convention to order at 12:30. He made a brief opening address in which endorsedthe Chicago platform and William Jennings Bryan. At the close of Mr. Taylors address the work of organization was proceeded with. Boyd A. Musser, the secretay then read the call for the convention and list of delegates. Nearly all were present or sent substitutes.

Col. J. L. Spangler was chairman of the convention, and made a very good address from his side of the question. D. F. Foreman, of Potter twp. acted as reading clerk; A. S. Garman, of Bellefonte, and C, A. Faulkner, of Philipsburg, as tellers; Joseph E. Emerick, of Walker, and R. C. Gilliland, of Snow Shoe were secretaries. The following ticket was placed in nomination.

J. J. Hoy, of Marion twp for jury commissioner, and J. H. Wetzel of Bellefonte for county surveyor.

The following were elected delegates to to the state convention and instructed for Stranahan for State Treasurer.

John Smith, of Gregg Twp., P. J. McDonald, of Unionville, Hammon Sechler, of Bellefonte; A. J. Casanova, of Philipsburg; and ex-Sheriff John P. Condo, of Millheim.

The next and final thing before the convention was the report of the committee on resolutions which was read by A. C. Thompson, of Half Moon.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

FIRST. That taking no steps backwards, we affirm our allegiance to the principles of the democratic party as promulgated in the Chicago platform, and our faith is so great and essential principles of justice and liberty upon which our institutions are founded, and which the democratic party has adhered to from Jefferson's time to the present, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the preservation of personal rights, the equality of all citizens before the law, and the faithful observance of all constitutional limitations.

SECOND. We re-affirm our devotion to the principles of the constitution, guaranteeing to every citizen the right of civil and religious liberty, and our unbounded faith in the democratic party as to the fearless exponent of political liberty, and religious freedom.

THIRD. We denounce the effort of the republican party to restore prosperity to the country and happiness of the people, by the means of greatly increased tariff taxation as contained in the Dingley Bill, as a burlesque and a fraud, and declare that it will add to the burdens of an already over taxed people, increase the cost of living, oppress labor, impoverish many industries to subsidize a few; that it will promote trusts and combine foster smuggling, enrich dishonest officials, and bankrupt honest merchants.

FOURTH. We demand that all tariff taxation shall be for revenue only, and declare that the only safe, reasonable and practicable way to restore prosperity and establish our confidence, is to confine the expenses of the government so as to be economically administered within the limits of income; that small earnings and low wages have compelled rigid economy among our people, we therefore demand the same economy in the management o governmental affairs, and to this end urge a reduction of legal fees and salaries of all public officials, federal, state and county.

FIFTH. We demand the free and unlimited coinage of both Gold and Silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation; and that the standard silver dollar shall be a full legal tender with gold for all debts, public and private.

SIXTH. We declare that an income tax is necessary to equalize taxation, in order to compell idle capital to bear its just proportion of the expences of administration of government.

SEVENTH. We denounce the unwarranted extravagance and profligancy of the present state administration, and look with horror upon the search being made by both the executive and legislative departments of the state government to find new subjects of taxation in order that they may raise sufficient revenue to support extravagence and uncalled-for appropriations, pay the largely increased salaries, of already paid officers, and maintain the many new and useless offices which they have created.

EIGHTH. We also denounce the present legislature for failure to pass a law requiring all banks in which state deposits are kept to pay a fair rate of interest.

We instruct the delegates to the State Convention to work for the nomination of Hon. James A. Stranahan for State Treasurer, and request them to use all honorable means to secure his nomination.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 7th, 1897.

President McKinley is naturally of an obliging disposition and nothing would please him more than to accept all the invitations that have been extended to him by cities and towns through which he will pass on his way to and from the Nashville Exposition, but it is absolutely impossible for him to do so, as the time set aside for the trip is necessarily limited. He will leave Washington next Wednesday morning, accompanied by a distinguished party made up of members of the Cabinet, Senators, Representatives and other officials, many of whom will be accompanied by the ladies of their families. The party will be in Nashville on Ohio day at the Exposition.

While the progress on the tariff bill in the Senate is not altogether as rapid as republicans would like it to be, it is, circumstances considered, satisfactory. More so, in fact, than many had expected it to be, just as the bill is being made better than many republicans expected it would be when the amended bill was reported to the Senate. The original Dingley bill was far more satisfactory to republicans of the rank and file than the bill as amended by the Senate Committee, and they are correspondingly pleased at the tendency of the steering committee of the Senate to restore the House schedule, or at least to make them nearer them than to the schedules of the amended bill.

While it cannot be officially announced that the sugar schedule of the original bill will be restored, it seems to be almost certain that the Dingley schedule will be made the basis for the sugar schedule that will be inserted in place of the one prepared by the Senate Finance Committee, which many republicans considered one of the most objectionable in the amended bill.

All of this makes it certain that the prophecy in this correspondence that the bill as finally passed would be a good one will turn out to be true.

The Postmaster crop will ripen early this year and a big harvest is expected. Postmaster General Garey, has announced that the commissions of all postmasters that expire between this date and July 15th, will be considered as having already expired, and their successors appointed as early as possible. This does not indicate any change in the policy of allowing postmasters to serve a full term of four years, unless there are causes for removal, but it is desired that where immediate changes are to be made, the new official shall, so far as possible, be in charge of their offices at the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1.

The first result of the investigations of the workings of the civil service rules is the unanimous report of the Committee on Reform in the civil service in favor of Senator Gallingers amendment to the general deficiency Appropriation Bill, abrogating all civil service rules which apply to any class of laborers. This amendment is in line with common sense, and will be sure to become a law. Talk with Senator Pritchard and other members of the committee makes it reasonably certain that other and more important recommendations as to exceptions from the civil service rules will be made by the committee a little later.

In accordance with a decision arrived at soon after his inauguration, President McKinley has nominated Ellis H. Roberts, of New York, to be treasurer of the U. S., and Conrad N. Jordan, to be Assistant Treasurer at New York. Mr. Jordan's nomination is for a second term, as he is a gold democrat and held the position under Cleveland's administration.

There is another B in the field for the democratic free silver and free trade presidential nomination in 1900. Is is Bailey, of Texas, who has the support of a majority of the democrats in the House in his efforts to be their leader. Mr. Bailey figures that he is quite as much of an orator as Mr. Bryan, and quite as much entitled to the nomination. After the nomination of Bryan no sensible man would doubt the possibility of any action by a democratic convention. Neither of them are fitted for so responsible a place as the Presidency, but Bailey has been regarded as less of a demagogue than Bryan, although getting the Presidential fever may cause him to out-Bryan Bryan in that direction.

Attorney General McKenna, is going to try his hand at enforcing the Sherman anti-trust law, which the Cleveland administration declares could not be enforced. He has directed that suit be entered in the U. S. Circuit Court against the Trader's Live Stock Exchange, of Kansas City, for violation of the anti-trust law by boycotting commission merchants who sold stock to those who did not belong to the exchange.

Sober Second Thought.

URBANA, O., June 6.—The reaction has set in after the tragic scenes of the week and sober second thought is resuming sway. The best news is that the wounded are getting better and the two believed to be fatally wounded will recover. Upton Baker's funeral took place this afternoon. He was poor and leaves a wife and four children. People are subscribing liberally for their benefit. Harry Bell's funeral will be held on Monday afternoon.

Very little was developed by the coroner's inquest that has not already been told. Deputy Sheriff Kirby testified that when danger appeared on June 2 the sheriff asked for ten members of the National Guard. Mayor Ganson has made a written statement that the prisoner was turned over by him to the sheriff on Wednesday evening and was entirely under the sheriff's charge, as was the company of National Guard.

The women of Urbana have called a mass meeting to take measures to make criminal assault on a woman a capital crime. A well founded rumor is circulating that the order to fire was given to one man to fire one shot at the ground, and then, through excitement, the fusillade began.

The lameness goes because it cannot stay. Bad backs are but bad kidneys. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure them. They reach the spot. Easy to prove that this is so. Ask your neighbors.

Ask Mrs. Elizabeth Derr, High street. She will tell you all about her late trouble personally. Here is the gist of her experience: "I am not a young woman by any means and my health is not what it was at one time. For a number of years I have had kidney disease, which has caused an almost constant backache. The least exertion increased the pain. Contracting a cold had the same effect. I am troubled with my nerves and cannot sleep well as a rule, but when you add to it distressing pain in the loins rest at night is an impossibility. It struck me that Doan's Kidney Pills might help me and I went to F. Potts Green, the pharmacists, and got a box. They greatly helped me. The first box made a decided change. The backache has left. I sleep much better and my appetite is slowly returning. I hold Doan's Kidney Pills in high estimation and only hope they may do as much for others as they have done for me.

The Business Outlook.

The most satisfactory trade statement that has been made since the present business depression set in was presented on Saturday in Dun's review. The statement was remarkable as showing the decided decrease in embarrassments in all branches of trade and in its glowing reports of the activity displayed in all the industries in anticipation of the passage of the Tariff bill. In most branches of trade the failures reported are smaller in number than at any time in the last thirty-six months. On the other hand, the statement is made that except for the temporary depression of prices the volume of business transacted is now larger than it was in 1892, the year of our greatest prosperity. This is shown by a comparison of prices in the leading branches of manufacture, and it is further demonstrated that the situation now shows a remarkable similarity to the course of prices in the earlier months of 1879, when the most wonderful advance in production and prices ever known in this or any other country was close at hand. There is an upward movement in iron, stocks have risen, the crop reports are excellent and gold exports have fallen off to $1,100,000 for the week. In every quarter of the country there are tendencies of a revival of confidence and the renewal of prosperity; uneasiness has given way to expectancy, and the entire trade world awaits only the enactment of the Tariff bill to spring into new life.

Once Wrong Always Wrong.

"Lynchings must not be tolerated in a great and civilized country like the United States; Courts, not mobs, must execute the penalties of the law."—From President McKinley's Inaugural address.

The institution of courts and civil governments was to avoid exactly such disgraceful affairs as that at Urbana. There is no charge that the Courts had shirked their duty. A miscreant convicted of one of the gravest of crimes had been promptly arraigned and convicted, and sentenced to the full extent of the law. If the penalty inflicted was inadequate the people who modified the original punishment were solely responsible for that. Having succumbed to a maw ish sentiment of clemency and embodied their sickly sentiment in a law, they were bound to abide by the consequences of their folly until the error could be corrected by legislation. The Urbana mob has not a leg to stand upon. It was party to the mistaken clemency of the penal statute. Its revolt against its own mawkish sentiment was only characteristic of a community converted into an unreasoning mob. The duty of the authorities was not obscure. They should have carried out the mandate of the Court at all hazards. If it became necessary to employ the militia, the mob should have been dispersed even if it involved its entire destruction. For if the penalty of the law was too lenient the people were themselves its authors. And the people have no more right to set aside a law except by repeal than the individual The people must abide by the consequences of their own deliberate acts. The doctrine that as the people make the laws they can set them aside at will or in the access of popular rage is monstrous and not to be excused. While it is not probable that the Urbana mob can be punished, an example should be made of the derelict authorities, Governor Bushnell must do his duty. He must cause the arrest of the ringleaders in this shameful affair, and the troops which shirked their duty should be disbanded in disgrace. It is a clear case of a people caught in the meshes of their own folly. Punish the ringleaders.

Love Letter In Her Stocking.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 7.—Miss Emma C. Lloyd, the handsome daughter of the proprietress of the Dundley Arms Hotel, committed suicide to-day by locking herself in a bedroom and turning on illuminating gas.

A search of Miss Lloyd's effects brought to light a letter signed "Norman" and dated "Philadelphia, June 5," in which the writer said he would probably wheel into Atlantic City on Sunday. The letter was found in one of the girl's stockings, and the fact that the girl's mother disclaims all knowledge of any one by that name leads the authorities to believe him to be a secret suitor. Whether Miss Lloyd met him or not is not known.

It is also reported that the girl had for a suitor a prominent young man of Pittsburg, but that his visits were discountenanced by the girl's mother. The latter is to-night in a state of severe nervous prostration, and fears are entertained that she may lose her mind. The young suicide was her favorite daughter.

URBANA, O., June 6.—Mrs. T. M. Gaumer, who was assaulted by Mitchell, the negro lynched by the mob last Friday today issued a card of thanks to her friends for their sympathy during her affliction. After speaking of the messages of sympathy she has received from many parts of the country, she concludes as follows:

"My heart and the sad hearts of my household are in mourning to-day for the afflicted homes of Urbana. Broken hearts call to hearts equally sad and distressed with prayer for strength and great sobs of sympathy. May all Christian hearts throughout the length and breadth of this free land of ours go out in sympathy to the sorrowing homes in our midst, now made desolate by misguided minds. Never did soldiers on any battlefield die for a more holy and righteous cause than these brave boys for the purity of their homes, for mothers, daughters and sisters. They should be looked on as heroes, as soldiers willing to spill their blood for the holiest of all and any cause.

Charged With Felonious Assault.

MEDIA, Pa., June 6.—Albert Burton, a young colored man, was brought to jail here to-day and committed for trial on the charge of felonious assault on Edith MacBride, a 7-year-old child of Charles MacBride, of Ianellyn. Burton made flight at once and was pursued by a mob of fifty carrying clubs and ropes. Fortunately for Burton he was captured by Constable Taylor, of Darby township, and two deputies on horseback some distance in advance of the mob. He was captured near Secane, still on the run. When taken before Justice Nichols at Glenolden, the little girl at once indentified Burton as her assailant. The colored man said he was not guilty and that he had never seen the little girl before. He explained his flight by saying that he knew he was suspected and he was afraid of the crowd.

"Saved From the Horrors of Nervous Prostration" by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

A COUGH does not always indicate consumption. Mr. W. H. Palmer, of Waterloo, Iowa, writes: "I was taken with a nervous stricture of the bronchial tubes, which developed into nervous prostration. I was so weak I could not sit up. I got no sleep for days except when under the influence of opiates. For four months I suffered agonies and prayed that I might die and be at rest. One physician said I had consumption, for I had a cough that gave me no rest. But a good old physician whose medicine had failed, advised me to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and I thank God that it has brightened my days, lengthened my life and saved me from the horrors of nervous prostration."

HIGH SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT.

Interesting Exercises by the Class of '97.

The fourteenth annual commencement exercises of the Bellefonte High School was held in Garman's Opera House on Thursday afternoon and evening. The large hall was crowded to the doors at both exercises and of the hundreds of spectators that thronged the Opera House, both in the afternoon and evening, there was not one but who was immensely pleased and well repaid for their time and presence.

The afternoon exercises were announced to begin at 2:30, but long before that time the guests had commenced to arrive and both auditorium and galleries were filled with anxious parents, hopeful friends and merry school children.

The interior of the Opera House was appropriately decorated for the occasion. Twining down the sides of the stage were the school colors, red and white, while across the top were those of the Class of '97, orange and blue. Suspended from one of the curtains in front of the stage was the Class Motto, "Abeunt Studia in Mores." On either side of the stage were beautiful palms, potted plants and cut flowers in profusion.

When the curtain went up it disclosed a picture beautiful in every respect, but which must be seen to be appreciated. In a circle sat the graduating class, with a look of proud determination on their faces which inspired confidence in the audience. Not one showed anxiety or fear.

On the right of the stage were Prof. A. R. Rutt and Rev. W. A. Stephens and in the rear of the stage were seated the school directors and friends of the pupils. The exercises were commenced by a beautiful selection by the Bellefonte orchestra composed of the following young men: Frank Deitrick, Frank Taylor, Prof. W. B. Reeves, Christie, Will and Fred Smith.

The following program was then presented:

Music. Invocation. Music.

Salutatory and essay—"Individual Growth a Factor in Civilization," Alice Maud Harshberger.

Oration—"The Feast Seems Ready, Shall the Carving Begin," Charles H. Kase, Jr.

Essay—"American Wonders," Emma C. Wagner.

Oration—"Common Carriers," Clarence G. Harper.

Music—Orchestra.

Essay—"The Gem of the Pacific," Gertrude Taylor.

Oration—"Competitive Elements of Modern Life," Alfred T. Irvin.

Essay—"The Queen City of the Plains," Mildred E. Wagner.

Essay—"Is it Right," Alice M. Ishler.

Music—Orchestra.

Oration—"Unsatisfied," Oliver Morton Smith.

Essay—"The New Woman," Myra S. Carson.

Oration—"The Price of Success," J. Wallace Reeder.

Music—Orchestra.

Essay—"Evils That Kill," Grace M. Blackford.

Eulogy on Jefferson—Joseph V. Runkle.

Essay and Valedictory—"The Man and the Occasion,"—M. Maud Miller.

The exercises lasted over two hours, but were so interesting that no one seemed to realize the passing time.

Each one of the graduates deserves special mention for manner in which they performed their part in the program. The subjects chosen were very interesting and instructive and the way in which they were handled showed that they had been carefully prepared. At the close of the exercises the graduates were showered with congratulations by their enthusiastic friends.

IN THE EVENING.

The exercises for the evening began at 8 o'clock with the Opera House again crowded. After a selection by the orchestra, President D. F. Fortney, of the school board, arose and in a few words introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. L. M. Colfelt, who delivered the commencement address. Dr. Colfelt is well known is this city as an eloquent and forcible speaker, and his practical talk to the graduating class and the large audience present abounded in splehdid thoughts. We regret we have not the space to publish his address in full, as it certainly was a treat to all who heard it. The main thought, which he brought out and tried to impress on the minds of the young, was that nothing is gained in this world except by industry. No man ever became great either as a statesman, rator, artist, merchant, or in any calling in life, except by honest effort and unremitting toil. There is no such thing as chance and the man who is always waiting for something to turn up generally makes a failure of life. The speaker also dwelt at length on the primary school system and said that too much attention could not be paid to this branch of a child's education. If the foundation is strong the whole structure will be strong.

At the close of this admirable address D. F. Fortney, Esq., gave the graduates some good advice and presented them with the prizes won and their diplomas.

Previous to this, however, a beautiful and appropriatesong, entitled "Farewell," was sung by the graduating class, which was highly appreciated.

The exercises were brought to a close with the benediction, pronounced by Rev. D. L. Jones, of Bellefonte.

And thus ended one of the most successful commencements ever held in the history of the Bellefonte High School.

Sweet Sixteen.

There is a beauty that is peculiar to old age. There is a beauty that is characteristic of middle-age and fully developed womanhood. There is a beauty, also which is seen only in babyhood and girlhood. But the beauty over which poets rave and artists linger is feminine beauty peculiar to the age of sixteen. At any time of life disease is bad enough; but when disease steps into a girl's life in time to deprive her of that peculiar grace which ought to be hers at sweet sixteen, it is far worse. Such was the unhappy experience of Mrs. F. M. Badgett, of 819 New St., Knoxville, Tenn., when she was a girl. She writes:

"When I was sixteen years old I suffered with female weakness of the worst kind and had spent all I had trying to get cured. I had tried several of the best physicians, but all failed to cure me. I gave up all hope of recovery and thought I was fast approaching consumption. Finally my teacher recommended Pe-ru-na to me, and lent me the money to get Pe-ru-na, as I hadn't anything left myself. I took the Pe-ru-na and it cured me. I am a well developed and healthy woman and I owe it all to Pe-ru-na. I had suffered for several years with female weakness. I am sure I would not be living now if it had not been for Pe-ru na. I can not help recommending it to sufferers."

ATTORNEY KUHN A SUICIDE

Put an End to His Life on the Eve of His Wedding Day.

HE COMMITTED THE ACT AT LIGONEER

He Was About 40 Years of Age and Was Worth From $75,000 to $100,000. No Cause Assigned for the Terrible Deed.

BROTHER OF REV. KUHN, BELLWOOD

LIGONIER, Pa., June 8.—On the eve of his wedding day, Robert S. Kuhn, formerly a prominent attorney of Pittsburg, and a man possessing considerable wealth, committed suicide in his room, at Frank's hotel Ligonier. Shortly before 8 o'clock Monday evening, when a porter went to Mr. Kuhn's room with some water, he found the door locked, and could get no response to his repeated knocks. Entrance to the room was secured through a window and Kuhn was found lying on the floor dead, a bullet from a revolver still clutched in his hand having entered his brain just above the right eye.

Kuhn had been living in Westmoreland and Somerset counties for some ten years, making his home mostly with Samuel Leasure, at Hooversville, Somerset county. He was to have married Leasure's daughter, Minnie, to-day, and went to Ligonier to draw $150 from the bank. He secured the money and stopped at the hotel for supper. While there he appeared to be in a pleasant frame of mind, and talked cheerfully to his acquaintances. He was about 40 years of age, and it is said, was worth from $75,000 to $100,000, inherited from his father.

A letter was found in his pocket from the young woman he was to marry, dated last Saturday. In it he is advised not to worry, but the contents do not indicate what might have been worrying him. Kuhn had known Miss Leasure about four years and seemed greatly devoted to her. He had all the arrangements made for his marriage.

Kuhn's will was in his pocket, and it bequeaths $5,000 to Miss Minnie Leasure and the balance of his estate to his brother, Rev. W. C. Kuhn, a retired Presbyterian minister at Bellwood.

While everything in the case points to suicide, there is a possibility that the shooting may have been accidental. The strongest advocates of the suicide theory are yet unable to assign any cause for the deed.

Mrs. Christiana Foster is a matron of Mattoon, who has recently been restored to the ranks of health after many years of suffering. She gave her statement to a reporter in such concise shape that we print it:

"My name is Christiana Foster, I am fifty years of age and a housekeeper. I have lived in Illinois ever since I was twelve years old. During the latter years of my life I have been much afflicted with stomach trouble, blood disorders and nervousness, and these were greatly aggravated about two years ago, when I became subject to most disagreeable hot flashes, (or perhaps I should say 'flushes).'

"I seemed to be losing ground all the time. I could not sleep but for a short time, not being able to obtain any appropriate rest, and I may say I was truly wretched.

"About one year ago, after reading an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I determined to get some of them, and did so, beginning to take them strictly according to directions. I had not taken half a box before I experienced relief, and before I had taken four boxes, I was, I may say, well. Of course I am growing old, but that did not account for the bad condition I was in, my blood did not circulate, and if I pricked my finger while sewing, no blood followed the puncture. All this is different now, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

(Signed) "MRS. CHRISTIANA FOSTER."
Witness: MRS. ED. HEARN.

The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills state that they are not a patent medicine but a prescription used for many years by an eminent practitioner who produced the most wonderful results with them, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves, two fruitful causes of almost every ill to which flesh is heir. The pills are also a specific for the troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, all forms of weakness, chronic constipation, bearing down pains, etc., and in the case of men will give speedy relief and effect a permanent cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. They are entirely harmless and can be given to weak and sickly children with the greatest good and without the slightest danger. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Scheme to Corner Whisky.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The Journal and Advertiser says: For two hours on Wednesday afternoon five telegraph instruments ticked off a private message of over 10,000 words from Louisville to New York capitalists, a message involving a gigantic scheme to corner two-thirds of the whisky in the United States. They are contemplating the formation of a pool to buy up 80,000,000 gallons of whisky now in bond in the state of Kentucky.

The plan necessarily implies advancing the price of whisky. Among the other reasons urged is the statements that the banks, which have loaned money on the liquor held in bond, are afraid of a decline in price which will affect the money they have already loaned.

The plan is said to have originated with Samuel M. Rice, President of the Spirits Manufacturing company, which succeeded the old Whisky Trust.

Jules S. Bache, of the banking house of J. S. Bache & Co., and Vice President of the American Spirits Manufacturing company, admitted that such a message had been received in this city.

The prices which the syndicate would have to pay would range from 39 cents to $2.50 per gallon, the average cost, it is believed, to be about 60 cents. At this rate the amount of money required to carry this stock of whisky would be nearly $50,000,000.

Kidnapped.

Walter, aged 11 years, son of Amos Burris, a P. R. R. engineer who resides at 1401 Washington street, disappeared from his home on Saturday last, and upon failing to return in the evening search was made. It was learned that he had gone to the dam above town where some boys were fishing, but before reaching there he encountered some tramps who enticed him to jump on a train eastward bound. Mr. Burris notified the railroad authorities, and telegrams were sent along the line on Sunday morning. The boy was found at Mifflin Sunday evening, but the tramps had fled.

Walter says the tramps told him to say that he went with them of his own accord, but he told his father that he didn't; they compelled him to go with them. The tramps were in town a few days since selling easels.—Huntingdon Local News.

A Valuable Dog.

This little dog tried to make amends for his sins. But, unfortunately he did not do it in the best way, although he hid the best he could. A story comes from New Haven about a black spaniel that abstracted a feather duster from his owner's house and while playing with it tore out all the feathers. The dog after being shown the featherless handle, was given a severe whipping with it. He then disappeared and about an hour afterwards walked bravely into the house with a brand new duster in his mouth. He walked up to his mistress and meekly deposited the new brush at her feet. By the mark on it she saw that the dog had stolen it from a neighboring fancy goods store.—Chicago Record.

Triennial Assessment Law.

A law was passed by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, and approved by the Governor on April 20, that hereafter triennial assessments must not be made later than December 31, commencing this year (1897). Heretofore in Centre county all assessments have been made in the month of May, consequently there will be two assessments in 1897.

The following is the Act:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, &c., That the Commissioners of the several counties of this Commonwealth shall issue their precepts to make the triennial assessment of property to the assessors of their respective townships, boroughs, wards and districts, on or before the second Monday of September; and the said assessors are hereby required to complete the said assessment and make their return thereof not later than the 31st day of December, A. D. 1897, and triennially thereafter; Provided, That the Commissioners of the several counties of the Commonwealth may, at the time of issuing their precepts as aforesaid, direct the return thereof to be made at any time before the said 31st day of December.

SEC. 2. That all laws, or parts of laws, general or local, in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Approved, the 20th day of April, A. D. 1897.

Some Cadets Rode Bareback.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 3.—The third day of the June examinations at the Military Academy consisted in the third and fourth classes taking up Spanish reading. Sections of the first class were examined in law, after completing the ordnance course.

An overcast sky and threatening weather caused a change in the military exercises this afternoon, cavalry drill in the riding hall being substituted for pontoon bridge building. The entire first class participated, half of whom used saddles. The other portion of the class rode bareback and gave a wonderful exhibition.

Masonic Recreation.

The Masonic fraternity in District No. 21, which embraces lodges in DuBois, Punxsutawney, Clearfield, Curwensville, Coalport, Bellefonte, Oscela, and Philipsburg, is arranging for a two days outing on the 24th and 25th, at Hecla park, on the line of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, near Bellefonte. At 10 o'clock on the night of the 24th the outers will go to Bellefonte to spend the night, and will return to the park early on the morning of the 25th. Ex-Governor Pattison and Governor Hastings have been invited to deliver addresses. The party will be made up of Masons, their lady friends, and members of their families. The affair promises to be first-class in every respect.

There will be lots of music, and on the night of the 24th there will be a grand pyrotechnic display.

HE HAILED PRINCE GEORGE.

An American in a Predicament in Greek Waters Got Royal Help.

When Prince George of Greece was in the United States to attend the World's Fair his presence was hardly noticed, and he was not compelled to run the gauntlet of Chicago interviewers. So it came that perhaps the Prince's first experience with the American method of acquiring knowledge for dissemination was afforded by an American artist who attended the Olympic games to illustrate an article for a New York magazine.

On the day of the swimming contests the artist was unable to find the boat which he, together with a party of friends, had chartered for the occasion. The races took place on the harbor, about three miles from the city, and the artist, armed with camera and sketching tools, wandered about on the crowded shores until he bargained successfully with two men for a boat. After paddling about for a time without seeing much chance of viewing the races, he made up his mind to board one of the larger vessels with which the water was crowded. He chose for his piratical designs one of the largest and best appearing of all the gayly decked craft and made his wishes known to the boatmen. Although he did not understand one word of Greek, there was no misunderstanding the fact that they forcibly remonstrated, and the more he commanded the more emphatic became their expostulations. He finally overruled their objections and induced them to row within calling distance of the big vessel. The artist hailed a man on deck in French, telling him who he was and what he wanted. The stranger answered in very good English, and after inviting the artist aboard, he brought a chair and arranged a place from which a good view of the start and finish could be had. Then he excused himself.

The American was very busy for a while, but it gradually occurred to him that the boat he was on was receiving a great deal of attention. After it began to move every other vessel saluted. When the races were finished and his host returned to the deck the artist learned that he had been received by Prince George of Greece. He suffered a little consternation at the beginning, but the Prince did not appear to notice it and chatted cordially, while he showed his guest about the vessel, finally posing before the camera. The artist was set ashore at his own request after a little trip about the bay, in the course of which the missing boat was encountered, and he had the pleasure of nodding to his friends from the deck of the royal yacht.

At one of the fetes following the games, at which there were many Americans—and, one of the young Americans regarded the Prince with boyish awe, and gravely saluted as he saw the Greeks salute. The Prince told him, tactfully, that he need not salute thus, "because you are an American."New York Sun.

THE FLOOR OF A CHURCH.

The Source from Which the Design of the Stars and Stripes Came.

The origin of national flags would be a deep, unfathomably deep subject in most cases, but our flag, the stars and stripes, is so young in this old world that it is possible to find out a good deal about its origin; still, even as to ours, we can only guess how in its first form it came to be just as it was, but the guess is so well founded that it ought to satisfy Yankees seeking the source of the Yankee flag. The first flag of the United States of America was raised by Washington at Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 2, 1776. It consisted of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, with a blue field emblazoned with the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew. The next year Congress substituted thirteen white stars for the crosses. Now in Northamptonshire, in England, in a village called Great Brington, is an old church containing the tomb of one of George Washington's ancestors. It is inscribed to the memory of Lawrence Washington, who died in 1616, leaving behind him (this is on the tomb, mind you) eight sons and nine daughters. Two of these sons emigrated to America, and from one of them descended our great man. Several of the Washington family of the same generation are buried here, and the Washington coat of arms is engraved on one, bearing an inscription to "Eliz. Washington," who died in 1622. Now, on this coat of arms appear three stars, with the stripes or bars beneath them. No one could see it without being reminded of the "star spangled banner." Undoubtedly when Washington was arranging to raise that flag at Cambridge, and arranging the flag, too, he took the idea of the stripes from his own old coat of arms. Not wanting to make the new banner too personal, so to speak, he kept in the blue field and the crosses, used in the British flag, but Congress, when it took up the subject, was pleased to follow the old coat of arms that belonged to the great general, who was fighting for them, and substituted the beautiful stars for the crosses that the redcoats carried. Charles Sumner took a deep interet in all these traces of the Washington family in England, and he once said, "The source of the design of the American flag lies on the old floor of Brington Church." He had a copy of the coat of arms, made by a local mason, in native stone.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

HIGH PRICED DOGS.

MORE VALUABLE THAN HORSES NOW IN THE NORTHWEST

A Great Demand for Them to Haul Supplies to the Gold Miners in the Yukon County, in Alaska. Boarding Houses Kept for their Special Purpose.

Word comes from Tacoma, Wash., that dogs have suddenly become more valuable than horses in that section of the Northwest. This state of affairs results from the great and growing demand for dogs to be used in hauling sledges in the Yukon country, Alaska. While thousands of horses for which their owners cannot get $3 a head are roaming over the plains of Eastern Washington and Oregon, good-sized dogs are bringing from $15 to $30 each in the local market. At Jeneau their value is double what it is here, and on the Yukon River a good dog brings from $100 to $150. To the Yukon miner the dog has become what the reindeer is to the Laplander and the pony to the cowboys of Texas and Mexico—a beast of service and a most valuable one.

The sledge dogs are too valuable not to be taken well care of where that is possible. Their owners' first thought in this respect is to obtain plenty of food for them. Their food consists principally of fish, usually salmon, caught in the Yukon River by the natives. An ordinary dog will eat daily two pounds of dried salmon, which equals seven pounds of fresh fish. At Forty Mile last winter dried salmon sold at from 20 to 50 cents a pound, and bacon that was fit only for dogs to eat sold for 37½ cents a pound. In some of the larger camps on the Yukon dog boarding houses have been established, where the animals are properly cared for at from $6 to $15 a month, according to the season and the price of dog food.

The native Yukon dog is much more valuable than the importations from Puget Sound. The dogs must be acclimated in order to stand the severities of winter. It is found that dogs taken from Montana and Dakota endure the Yukon winters with less suffering than those bred in the milder climate of Puget Sound. Two splendid specimens of native Alaska dogs were brought here a few days ago, their owner finding it cheaper to pay their passage on the steamer than to have them boarded at Dyea during his trip here for supplies. The animals weigh, one 82 and the other 88 pounds. The large one cost its owner $117 at Circle City. Both animals are stout, well proportioned and muscled, and have exceptionally short and heavy necks. Their ears are short and lifted like those of the Eskimo dog. Their coats are dark, and the hair, while not close, is smooth and heavy enough to form a comfortable protection against the Arctic winters and the Yukon mosquitoes, by the side of which the ferocity of the New Jersey variety pales into insignificance. A specially prepared dog food made out of meal and coarse meat from the packing houses is now being manufactured in the form of a cracker and seems likely to come into general use.

Buskskin moccasins are provided by many owners to keep the feet of the animals from being worn raw on the ice and snow. They are about nine inches long and made much after the pattern of a child's stocking. Pack saddles are also coming into use this spring. These are so arranged that dogs can carry a weight of from 10 to 20 pounds besides drawing a sled. The saddlebags fall on either side, and straps are arranged to prevent the pack from sliding forward or backward.—New York Sun.

A Most Revolting Case.

A most revolting case came to light one evening of this week upon the arrest of two brothers, Jeremiah and William Garder, of Ferguson township, this county. It appeared that the brothers kept bachelors' hall since their mother's death. Their father, 70 years old, resided with them. His sons refused their father both temporal and spiritual comforts. The other night, when the old man was praying, one of the sons apppreached him with a revolver and made him cease praying and get into bed.

The arrest was made upon the petition of 40 of the best citizens of that township to District Attorney Singer.—Williamsport Grit.

THE SCOND DAY.

Golden Jubilee of the American Medical Association.

MANY IMPORTANT PAPERS READ

President McKinley Was Introduced and Made an Address to the Large Crowd of People Who Were Present.

ACCOMPANIED BY GOV. HASTINGS

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—The second day's session of the golden jubilee of the American Medical association showed a large increase in attendance over the evening session. During the opening hour a general air of expectancy prevailed, due to the anticipated arrival of President McKinley.

Prior to the session of the main body, sections in the practice of medicine, surgery and anatomy, opthalmology and laryngology and otology were held. Papers were read by Mark W. Richardson, of Boston; A. P. Ohlmacher, Cleveland; Wm. Osler, Baltimore; J. A. Witherspoon, Nashville; Joseph Ranoshoff, Cincinnati; Carl Beck, New York; W. E. Wirt, Cleveland; Robert Randolph, Baltimore; Harold Gifford, Omaha; C. W. Richardson, Washington, D. C., and A. E. Prince, Springfield.

When the main body has been called to order by President Senn, Dr. Austin Flint read a paper on medicine. He spoke of the great advances that have been made in the field of American medicine and the possibilities of the future. The latter portion of his address dealt largely with the result of experiments made by him with respect to the various ailments of humanity.

The convention was transacting some ordinary business when President McKinley entered, accompanied by Dr. Senn. The delegates and their ladies rose en masse and applauded for nearly five minutes. This again broke out when the chief executive was formally introduced. President McKinley spoke briefly, during which he said that while he came to the city for another purpose yet he could not refrain from dropping in to pay homage to the medical profession, and in conclusion he said:

"I extend to you my very best wishes and hearty congratulations on this, the semi-centennial of your association."

The president then left. He was accompanied by Governor Hastings, Mayor Warwick, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosvelt and Theo. C. Search, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. While the party was leaving calls were made for Governor Hastings and that official being introduced spoke briefly.

Smith Denies Speculating.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Senator Smith, of New Jersey, made a brief personal statement in the Senate this afternoon in reply to the newspaper charge, repeated in the Senate by Senator Tillman, that he (Smith) had speculated in sugar stock. He said:

"Mr. President—During my absence from the Senate the other day, I ascertain from the Record, that in a very remarkable deliverance by the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. Tillman), he became sponsor for a newspaper clipping in which my name was mentioned in connection with the sugar schedule in the pending tariff bill.

"It is only necessary for me to say that the statement in the newspaper clipping in question is absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue. I have not, during this session of Congress, bought or sold directly or indirectly a single share of sugar stock, nor at any time prior to this when any legislation affecting the value of sugar or sugar stock was pending."

Prospecting for Coal.

Since the beginning of this year prospecting for coal on lands at Winterburn has been in progress. The DuBois Courier says the Craig and Blanchard lands comprise 8,000 acres; the timber has been taken off and the heirs to the property have joined in organizing a coal company known as the Winterburn coal company. Between two and three years ago, Chas. Blanchard, Jr., who controls the interests of the Blanchard heirs, opened a mine near the village. He equipped it with all the modern appliances and took out some coal, but soon ran up against an extensive fault. This difficulty probably had some influence in starting the drill, as it is an expensive way to learn so soon after an operation is started that it was located in the wrong place.

Mr. Lowther has put down four holes in the time he has been at work, the deepest being 443 feet. The tests which are about to be resumed will, it is believed, be pursued until the whole property has been thoroughly examined and its mineral resources are known to those who control the estates.

Tossed on the Foaming Billows

You may never have been, but if you cross the Atlantic, no matter how smooth the watery expanse, without sea sickness you are—well, a lucky voyager, that is all. Old tars who have spent their lives on the ocean waves, who were almost born, so to speak, with their "sea legs on," suffer now and then with sea sickness in very tempestuous weather. Sea captains, tourists, commercial travelers and yatchsmen say that there is no finer safe guard against nausea than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and it has been equally reliable as a preventive by invalids who travel by steamboat and railroad, and who sometimes suffer as much in those conveyances as ocean travelers do in steamships. Biliousness, constipation, sick headache and disorders of the stomach caused by oppressive climatic influences or unwholesome or unaccustomed food or water, always yield to the Bitters speedily. This popular medicine also remedies rheumatic, kidney and nervous disorders, and the infirmaties incident to increasing years.

How Sleep Spoiled a Prayer.

The Chicago Chronicle tells of a religious little boy of Chicago who never goes to sleep without praying that his soul may be kept throughout the long and watchful night. The other evening, however, he became a little mixed about bedtime. When in his snow white gown he made a movement toward the little cot, but he was reminded that he had forgotten to say his evening prayer. He quickly knelt at his mother's side, and lying his small head upon his folded hands, began:

"Now I lay me down to sleep,
I pray thee Lord my soul to keep."

But there his drowsiness became too much for him. His curly head went down with a bump against his mother's knee, and she, to help him out softly suggested: "If." He made another effort, and as his mother prompted him the second time, he brightened up and finished:

"If he hollers let him go,
Ene, meni, mine, mo."

When to Catch Fish.

Prof. Coles in storms and Signs, published at Kingston Pa. says the best days for to catch fish this month will be Thursday 3d, Friday 4th, Saturday 5th, Friday 11th, Saturday 12th, Monday 14th Monday 21st, Tuesday 22d, Wednesday, 23d, Monday 28, and Tuesday 29th. The Mission of Rural Home.

[Essay read before Centre Co. Pomono grange May 24, 1897 by Mr. B. F. Brown of victor grange.]

The word 'Home' callsup tender associations. There we first saw the light. There we learned to walk, talk and perhaps learned to say our prayers. Ask the child where home is? answer, "where my mother is." The man can never get away from thoughts of home. They come in the busy hours of the day and are repeated in the dream of night. Home is a place where we retire from the strife of a noisy world, In the world men go clad in armor, for they receive many an unkind thrust. At home we take off the armor we are safe there. No one will wound us there. God gave to the beaver instinct, it builds a hut and the bee builds its cell. Even the spider on the bush loves to sit on her own web. So in man's breast there is a desire for some undisturbed retreat where his wants are recognized. You say man is a social being, and to be always at home would be to live the life of a hermit. But to have no home is to be poorer than the foxes and the birds of the air. If home is to be a place of quiet, where can we find it but in the country. In the country we may sit under our own vine and fig tree, none daring to molest or make us afraid. The first home of the human race was in a garden. There our first parents started housekeeping, God himself was the upholsterer. He laid a carpet of grass and moss. For curtains he hung the tree branches with foliage. They needed no other pictures than the trees and flowers painted by the hand of God. No home since has been as beautiful as that. Soon after the flood men tried to build a city. and have been building cities ever since Joseph Cook, of Boston. said in 1878, in one of his preludes: In 1800 only 1-25 of the population of America lived in cities and large towns 1-5 are now formed in our cities. Sometimes men exchange the country for the city and are ruined by their choice. It was the ruin of Lots family when he moved to Sodom, God made the country and man made the town as one has expressed it. The city shows us mans works, the country shows Gods work. In the city man's works look down from their lofty pedestals. In the country gods works look down from the everlasting hills, in the country the breezes come laden with the odor of flowers, in the city there if they come at all are laden with something else often less agreeable. Cities are beautiful when they have something of the rural home in them. The many lovely parks are a source of pleasure and retirement from the dusty streets there our thoughts will go back to god the founder of heaven and earth. When a certain man wanted to make Babylon beautiful, he made hanging gardens supported on pillars, and on an artificial mountain were seen forest trees waving in the summer light, when Solomon wanted to beautify Jerusalem he made floods of water and planted trees and flowers. So from our first parents down to the present age man has ever been proud of an attractive rural home. City people sometimes sneak slightingly of the country, but they need not, for if it were not for the country they would have nothing to stand their little cities on. So they must not look down on us, we feed them, giving them their daily bread.

The Rural home is important. From it has gone forth presidents of the nation and orators and statesmen. It was in such a home that Washington, the father of our country was reared and to that he retired to die. When Rome needed some one to lead her armies some of her citizens were sent to summon Cincinnatus, from his farm. They found him ploughing but he left his work and led their armies to victory and in less than a month was back on his farm again. Moses reared in Egypt, was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, but God to prepare him fully for the great work, sent him away from that lands of cities that he might breath the pure air of the desert, and in the solitude commune with his maker. He was not fit to lead Israel till he had seen the bush a blaze with the divine glory. Gideon was called to do a great work for God from his rural home while engaged in thrashing corn thus you see by the teachings of God in calling so many to important work from such homes the duties devolving upon each one of us. It does seem manifest that from the rural home should go forth men fully equiped for the great battles of life to make laws fill positions of trust. We should be banded together in the best interests of rural persuits. Let no carelessness on our part degrade the purity that God intended our homes to possess. If from the rural hometwent forth the rulers of yesterday. Say will they not again tomorrow. Then the mission is important. 1st Their should be love in the home; 2nd There should be obedience. children should be rewarded with words of praise for noble deed, sometimes with reproof, and the rod, for wrong doing. When parents make no distinction, the child loses his tenderness of conscience.

3d Don't make home simply a work shop where the machine is always running All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, but give Jack some wor , as well as play, for idleness is poor business. 4th, Let the parents keep young and join the children in some innocent games 5th, Keep cheerful if you want your child at home in the evenings. Don't fill the house with sighs and groans. Make home as attractive as possible have a few pictures, and music. Children should be taught to sing. How when the school bell in winter are ringing from so many hilltops give yonr children all the education you can. In order that the home may fulfil its mission the windows should be open towards the Heavenly Jerusalem. To illustrate, Joshua settled down on a hilly farm in the mount of Ephraim. He is dying. Hark to his last words. "As for me and my house we will serve the Lord." Sisters and Brothers in that rural home that mission was grandly fulfilled.

Warwhoops are Audible.

MILES CITY, Mont., June 3.—Sheriff Gibbs returned last night from the Cheyenne Agency. The Indian situation, he says, is very grave indeed. He reports 200 or more Indians off the reservation and scattered in the hills. Their warwhoop can be heard frequently, and the dancing continues. Old settlers look for trouble. The Sheriff's posse, 300 strong, under command of Stock Inspector Smith and Capt. Brown, are now stationed in small numbers in and about the settlements near the reservation to protect the remaining settlers and prevent the destroying of property by the Indians.

Indian Agent Stouch would not deliver the prisoner, Badger, up to the Sheriff when called upon to do so, saying he was afraid, or he would escort Badger off the reservation Friday, with troops, and deliver him to the authorities. The Sheriff placed Capt. Stouch under arrest, but left him at liberty until summoned by County Attorney Porter.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness. and that is by constitutional remedies, Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Horse Shoe's Swift Trip.

READING, June 2.—While the engine of the neversink Fire company was responding to the fire alarm on Saturday night one of the horses struck its hind hoof on a cobble stone. Its shoe was loosened and the momentum lifted the iron to the third story of the building at 331 Penn street, where it crashed against the window of the Rod and Gun club and hung to the sash. Five panes of glass were broken and two members who were at the window had a narrow escape. The shoe ascended at least thirty feet; The club will have the shoe framed.

More

Curative power is contained in Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other similar preparation. It costs the proprietor and manufacturer more. It costs the jobber more and is worth more to the consumer. More skill is required in its preparation. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine to buy because it is an honest medicine and thousands of testimonials prove that it does actually and permanently cure disease.

No Sugar Trust Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Senator Tillman will not get his Sugar Trust investigation from the Senate. This seems to be finally settled by the refusal of the Democrats to press the matter, and especially their unwillingness to extend the investigation so as to cover campaign contributions of 1892, as well as campaign contributions of 1896.

The members of the Committee on Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to which the Tillman resolution was referred, are Populist Jones, of Nevada, Republican Gallinger, of New Hampshire, and Democrat Jones, of Arkansas, and they are understood to agree that, under the circumstances, it is inexpedient to report the resolution favorably, and therefore it will either be allowed to die in committee or it will be reported adversely.

Senator Jones, of Nevada, went to-day to Bryn Mawr to see his daughter graduate, and may not return until next week, prolonging his trip to New York, and meanwhile nothing will be done. If the resolution should be reported and pressed to a vote in the Senate it will be with the understanding that it will be defeated.

Let's Have Another.

The Lock Haven Express has the following to say about the Business Men's Picnic.

The picnic at Hecla Park last summer. of the business men of Lock Haven, Bellefonte, and Centre and Clinton counties, was so much of a success that it was decided to hold another "business men's picnic" this year.

Hammond Sechler, of Bellefonte, was elected chairman, W. F. Elliott, of this city, secretary, and G. W. Fredericks, of Flemington were chosen, with authority to select an executive committee of nine, who in conjunction with the officers were empowered to name the time and place of holding the picnic this summer.

The coming picnic is already talked of in this city, and inquiries have been made at this office as to whether any action has been taken yet by the committee. So far as the EXPRESS can learn, nothing has been done yet, but the committee will no doubt act at the proper time.

Veto It.

At the last session of the legislature Senator Andrews' succeeded in getting a committee appointed to investigate political matters in Philadelphia. It was at that time agreed and understood that the state should pay none of the expenses of the committee or it would not have been appointed, the "Reform Committee" of one hundred in Philadelphia agreeing to bear the expenses and did raise $20,000 for the purpose. Now Senator Andrews' presents a bill of over $60,000 and has, a bill passed through the Senate for the State to pay it. As it was a local Philadelphia matter the State has no right to pay it, and if the lower house should pass the Senate bill the governor would be justified in vetoing it. A few more men like Andrews' the republican party in this State, would soon be on its death bed.

Mrs. Watson's Sad Plight.

The following is from the Grit of Saturday: For some time past Mrs. Green Watson, of Curtin township, has been greatly depressed in mind, bordering on dementia. A few days ago she loaned her husband one dollar. That fact she got to brooding over, and came to the conclusion that her husband would not return the dollar to her. She next came to the conclusion that life was not worth the living without the dollar. She then fastened a rope to a beam, and mounted a chair, and fastened the other end around her neck, and then kicked the chair from under herself. The noise made by the falling of the chair was heard by her husband and a neighbor, who were in the yard, and rushed into the house. One of them held her body up, while the other cut the body down, thereby saving the woman's life.

A Mysterious Runaway.

Early Sunday morning a mysterious runaway occurred, which startled the sleeping inhabitants of Spring and Howard streets beyond measure and resulted in almost ruining a very valuable span of horses belonging to Banker George W. Jackson.

Many stories are afloat in regard to the matter, but the facts seem to be about as follows: On Saturday night, about 11 o'clock, some parties took the horses from Mr. Jackson's stable without his knowledge or permission and started out into the country for a lark. They evidently imbibed too much firewater and on their way back the horses became frightened at the brutalities of their drunken passengers and ran away. They came tearing in the pike from the furnace and when near the residence of William McClure, corner of Bishop and Spring streets, the occupants of the carriage were thrown out. On down Spring street rushed the horses, turning the corner at the Methodist church and running down Howard street until they fell on the sidewalk in front of the residence of Mrs. Hale. This was about half-past four in the morning. The noise aroused Mr. Archie Allison, who at once dressed and hurried over. No one was in sight when he got there, but several others soon arrived and with their assistance Mr. Allison got the horses up and took them out to Mr. Jackson's stable. When found the horses were badly cut up and bleeding profusely. One of them was lying with its head toward the stepping stone and its feet towards the front porch at Hale's, and it was believed to be dead. Such was not the case and although they are both badly cut and bruised, with careful treatment they will be all right again. The carriage is pretty well wrecked. The evidences of a spree were plainly manifest; broken whisky bottles were scattered all over Hale's pavement and the cloth in the bottom of the rig was fairly saturated with whisky. Words cannot be found to adequately express condemnation for the brutes who perpetrated this outrage. They should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law for cruelty to animals.

Special day in the Interest of the Y. M. C. A.

Sunday was an eventful day for the Bellefonte Young Men's Christian Association, in that nearly every church service was suspended and representative association men occupied the pulpits both morning and evening, and addressed the public in the interest of the association. State Secretary S. M. Bard most ably filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian church, and held the closest attention of the audience for nearly one hour. Special mention might also be made of the addresses by Secretary Lanmaster of Danville in the Methodist church. Secretary Dodge of Fottsville in the Reformed church; Secretary Worth of Lock Haven in the Lutheran church, and College State Secretary Hugh McA. Beaver in the U. B. Chnrch. Secretary Lanmaster made a stirring Gospel talk to a good sized audience in the Court House Sunday afternoon. In the evening two platform meetings were held; in the Presbyterian church presided over by J. W. Gephart Esq, and in the Methodist church presided over by Judge Jas. A. Beaver. The attendance at these meeting was large, and much interest was manifested. The best of impressions made by the speakers and the people of Bellefonte were greatly enlightened in the scope and magnitude of association work throughout the whole world. No doubt the Bellefonte association will be greatly helped by this special effort, and it is hoped that everybody will show their interest in a practcial way by contributing to the work when called upon by some members of the finance committee.

Thomas J. Newall a former resident of this place, died at his home in Reading Thursday, June 3rd, at 20 minutes past twelve, of pleuro-pneumonia. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the house.

DEATH OF WILLIAM JONES.

An Old and Respected Citizen Has Passed Away.

On Tuesday the community was greatly shocked to learn of the sudden death of William Jones, a veteran of the late war and an old and highly respected citizen of our town. About a year ago he had a sick spell which nearly resulted in his death, but he was able to be about again and attend to business as usual. For the past week he had been ailing, but Monday being a fair day he thought the air would do him good, so he came down town and attended to his business as usual. Coming home in the evening he ate a hearty supper and before retiring was feeling well and in a good humor. He retired about 9:00 o'clock, bidding them all good night and joking when he went to his room.

Mr. Jones generally arose about 8:00 o'clock. In the morning his daughter, Miss Kate, passed through his room about half-past six and he seemed to be sleeping comfortably. Mrs. Jones afterwards went to his room door and called him to breakfast, but not coming down Miss Kate went the second time to call him, and when she approached his bedside was horror-stricken to find her father cold in death, and she hurriedly gave the alarm. An examination showed that death was due to rheumatism of the heart.

THE LATE WILLIAM JONES.

William Jones was born at Hull, England, June 24th, 1820, making his age 76 years, 11 months and 15 days. When a young man he served in the British navy, visiting many lands and seeing many strange faces. He came to this country about 40 years ago, first settling in Indiana. During the late war he was a good and faithful soldier, serving both in the Marines and in an Ohio company of Infantry.

At the close of the war he drifted to Bellefonte and has been here ever since. Mr. Jones was a great friend of the old war Governor Andrew G. Curtin and during the latters term as Minister to Russia, Mr. Jones was left in charge of valuable property belonging to him.

During his life here he has held many positions of trust and by his fidelity and honesty has won a position which anyone might envy. He served one term as tax collector of Bellefonte, and for many years has been employed by the 1st National Bank as messenger, and night watchman. For 14 years he was quartermaster of Gregg Post No. 95 G. A. R.

All the electric light bills were collected by him. Many hundreds of dollars have passed through his hands and his accounts have always balanced to the exact cent. In whatever position in life he has been placed he has always fulfilled every duty imposed faithfully, honestly and conscientiously.

Deceased leaves a wife, Hannah, and three children, Ellen, Katherine, and John Paul, who greatly mourn the loss of a kind and devoted father.

The funeral will take place next Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Episcopal church, of which he was a devoted member. The funeral will be in charge of the G. A. R. and interment will be made in the Union cmetery.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.
